London Homes Wrecked By Bombs

'Almost continual bombing of London by German airmen leaves vast stretches of the city like this . . . and air raid precaution workers dig through the debris of bomb-shattered homes searching for victims. Scenes like this are common in the British capital these days.

RUINS BLOCK ALL LONDON BUSES AS FLAMES SPREAD

BULLETIN

ROME, Sept. 10 (INS)—Nazi Germany will immediately begin "ruthless air bombing of the British civilian population," the newspaper Giornale d'Italia declared today.

By CHARLES A. SMITH

LONDON, Sept. 10 (INS)—A new salvo of German bombs crashed into the bustling Covent Garden area of London today, demoralizing traffic in the leading busiess districts while fires from last night's terrific attack still smouldered.

London had two brief air raid warnings during the afternoon—the first from 12:55 to 1:18 and the second from 4:00 to 4:17. While comparatively few bombs were dropped, the alarms added to the grave confusion.

Traffic was hoplessly snarled all the way from Covent Garden down the Strand and Fleet st. into the "City" area where firemen and A. R. P. workers still struggled to cope with blazes and delayed action bombs in the shadow of famous St. Paul's cathedral.

Four persons in a nearby district who escaped a bomb in an air raid shelter were crushed to death upon emerging when a neighboring building collapsed.

Covent Garden embraces the huge fruit and vegetable markets which supply London with virtually all of its farm produce. Most of the city's meat supply is handled from Smithfield market, a few blocks away. Nazi attacks in such areas indicate an attempt to starve out the capital by smashing its sources of distribution. Censorships prohibited any estimate of the actual damage at Covent Garden.—Editor's Note.

ALL BUSES HALTED

Taxis throughout the whole Strand and Fleet st. districts which connect the financial and business areas with the West End, were virtually unprocurable. Buses were held up in a solid red line throughout the whole heart of London.

In an effort to improve the situation, the ministry of transport issued a proclamation requesting the public to refrain from traveling in London unless absolutely essential in order to facilitate repairs from the seemingly endless series of bombings.

During the first alarm this afternoon, spent cartridge shells and a few bombs fell in London's shattered streets following the third consecutive nightly attack which blasted three hospitals, started numerous fires and partly disrupted transport.

The first alarm was followed by a sharp aerial battle over the center of London. German planes tried ineffectually to knock down the capital's main balloon barrage but none fell.

MANY MORE CASUALTIES

While a heavy toll of casualties was reported in last night's 57th raid on London, authorities said the figure would be considerably less than that of Saturday or Sunday nights. In those attacks a total of approximately 600 persons were killed and 2500 injured.

It was conceded, however, that

RAF AGAIN BLASTS BERLIN

By PIERRE J. HUSS

BERLIN, Sept. 10 (INS)—British bombs exploded in the heart of Berlin during a 40-minute Royal Air Force raid today while Nazi planes carried out a new and 'successful" attack on London.

The sectors of Berlin hit included Moabit, a mile from the Tiergarten. It was the second time Moabit, where the Berlin criminal courts are located, has been raided.

Damage there was light, German authorities said, but bombs dropped on other northern sections of Berlin proper and in the suburbs set fire to houses. One such structure was wrecked in Berlin itself and another one-family house destroyed in the suburbs.

PLAN FURIOUS REVENGE

Nazi officials lost no time in warning that new reprisals would follow this latest attack on Berlin. A spokesman said:

"Berliners, remembering Hit-

DELAYED ACTION BOMBS STILL PERIL LONDONERS

LONDON, Sept. 10 (INS)—Delayed action bombs dropped by raiders last night and this morning were still blasting the central London region shortly before noon today and increasing the nervousness of over-tired London residents.

But while there were few calm nerves in this battered capital there was remarkably little grumbling among the millions who had just experienced their third successive night of intensive Nazi bombing.

Pedestrians slogging through the battered central district were shaken by the frequent reverberations of the delayed action bombs, but areas where the bombs fell were so heavily cordoned and protected that no further casualties were reported.

THUMBING RIDES

Disruption of transportation facilities resulted in London sidewalk scenes unequalled since the famous transportation snarl during the 1926 general strike.

Thousands of workers and businessmen were compelled to walk to their offices, while many thousands of others "thumb" rides—in fish wagons, private cars or any type of vehicle they could find.

Passengers in buses found themselves suddenly spewed out at unfamiliar halting places as they approached areas put under strict control as a result of the newest nine-hour raid.

All rubber-necking and sightseeing was strictly taboo as police enforced the tightest possible cordons around dangerous areas.

"GIVE IT TO BERLIN"

As red-eyed and sleepless workers moved wearily to their jobs, the keynote seemed to be:

"We'll take all Hitler's got to offer, so long as the RAF gives Berlin and all Germany the same kind of treatment."

In all parts of the city, churches, schools, empty rooms and buildings are being requistioned to house thousands of refugees.

An emergency canned food program had been established without rationing to feed the areas whose residents are unable to cook, as well as the refugees whose homes have been blasted into crumpled piles of masonry and plaster, rendering them untenable.

St. Paul's Still Safe in Bombing

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP)—A member of the staff of St. Paul's Cathedral said today that the famous church in the heart of London was not damaged by bombs which fell near by in last night's raids.

"We have not had a window cracked," he said.

Surprise Baby Bared In Hannaford Battle

Disclosure that Mrs. Mary Jane Hannaford of South Boston had taken a baby girl, temporarily, from Westfield Hospital before the advent of a boy she now claims as her son was made today in probate court.

Mrs. Hannaford is battling for possession of the 6-year-old boy who was taken from her in May, 1938, by an investigator for the State Child Welfare Division who claims it is the son of a young Brockton unwed mother.

Today the Brockton girl, now 22 years old, was called quietly into the lobby of Judge Frederick Dillon and there questioned privately in connection with the strangely-mixed case.

Judge Dillon requested that the name of the girl, daughter in a prominent Brockton family, be not mentioned.

Just before this private session, Atty. Robert P. Heavens, who was counsel for Thomas H. Hannaford, well-to-do South Braintree contractor when he sought annulment of his marriage to the woman who now uses his name, was on the witness stand.

QUOTES TESTIMONY

Atty. Heavens testified that he heard Mrs. Hannaford's testimony in the annulment proceedings in Norfolk County.

"She testified," he said, "that she knew and had known from the beginning that she was not the mother of Tommy or Mary Elizabeth, and that Mr. Hannaford knew it from the beginning.

"She testified that she went down into the gravel pit and got down on her knees and begged Mr. Hannaford to adopt Tommy."

Again on the stand today was Miss Mary G. McCann, the investigator for the Child Welfare Division who took little Tommy from Mrs. Hannaford at the contractor's home in South Braintree, after Hannaford had visited the State House.

Miss McCann testified that she had made a previous visit to the house in 1935 after a clergyman had asked the Child Welfare Division to locate the boy born to the Brockton girl in June, 1934.

MRS. MARY J. HANNAFORD
Fights For Child

EXPECTED ADOPTION

On the occasion of her 1935 visit, however, Miss McCann made no move to take the child, she said, because then she believed the boy would be adopted by Mrs. Hannaford.

It was here that Miss McCann revealed that Mrs. Hannaford had earlier obtained a little girl from th Westfield Hospital, but had returned it to the hospital.

When Miss McCann first went to the Hannaford home, she said, Mrs. Hannaford told her she was not the mother of Tommy.

"She told me," the investigator testified, "she had taken him for adoption and that her husband refused to sign the papers. She said she was very fond of the child and wanted to adopt him."

RETURNS WITH BABY

Miss McCann said that three days before she took Tommy in 1938, Hannaford talked with her at the State House.

"Mr. Hannaford told me Mrs. Hannaford had pains and he took her to the Ducy Hospital in Brockton and 12 days later she came home with a baby. He believed it was his baby."

Judge Dillon here pointed out that this testimony contradicted that of yesterday by Dr. William D. Ducy, who said he and Mrs Ducy had personally delivered little Tommy, as an infant, to the Hannaford home.

LA CORUNA, Spain, Sept. 10 (AP)—Two big gas bags, believed to be British barrage balloons broken loose from their moorings, were seen drifting westward today off the coast of Spain.

630 Jews, 200 Child Refugees Land in N.Y.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The British liner Cameronia arrived from Glasgow today with 630 German-Jewish refugees and 200 kilted Scottish children, brought to safety from bombarded Britain. The total passenger list numbered 930.

The national committee for Jewish refugees here is assuming responsibility for them and will direct them to new homes. All the children will go to homes of relatives or friends.

SAFETY MEN MEET

Some 150 members of Gov. Saltonstall's committee on public safety gathered at the State House today for their first meeting and an address by the chief executive. Former Gov. Channing Cox was acting chairman.

POLLY (MISS MASSACHUSETTS) CONNORS
Bedford Beauty Back Home With Trophies

BEAUTY HONORS THRILL TO POLLY

Triply honored at the Atlantic City beauty pageant, where she placed fourth in the competition for the title of "Miss America of 1940," Polly Connors proudly displayed an array of trophies at her Bedford home today.

The vivacious, auburn-haired beauty, who was named "Miss Massachusetts" shortly before she entered the national contest, was loaded down with prizes when she arrived home.

A score of her friends and admirers greeted her at South Station, to be among the first to congratulate her on her success. Accompanying Polly was her mother, Mrs. Paul Sullivan. After a brief rest at their home in Hillside ave., Bedford, Polly will hasten back to New York tomorrow, she disclosed, in order to be photographed in motion picture tests by M-G-M and 20th Century-Fox film companies.

"I'm just thrilled over the chance to be screen-tested," she said. "And of course I am delighted over the good fortune I had at Atlantic City and the way everyone treated me."

Her most prized trophy was a three-feet high carved silver piece, awarded when the other entrants in the annual beauty competition voted to name Polly "Miss Congeniality."

She was also given a trophy for being third runnerup to Miss America, another for earning the right to be a contestant, a watch, a make-up kit and the red, white and blue bathing suit she wore in the bathing suit contest.

Hunt Mothers Who Left Babes

FALL RIVER, Sept. 10—While two babies cooed in the arms of welfare workers, police today launched a search for the mothers who abandoned the infants.

One baby, an 18-month-old girl, was left with Mrs. Margaret Vivelros, 53, of Division st. She was to be paid $5 weekly for the infant's care, but the parents failed to return as agreed, she told officers.

The second baby, an eight-month-old boy, was left with Beatrice Auger, 15, of Central st. According to the girl's mother, Mrs. Rose Auger, a woman about 25 handed the child to Beatrice to care for until she returned at midnight. Beatrice was given 50 cents. The mother failed to return.

21-44 Draft Age Seen as Senate, House Seek to Compromise Bills

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—A joint Senate-House conference committee whose members already have voted individually 9 to 2 for immediate conscription worked today to compromise the differences of the two branches of Congress on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

The big differences were:

1—The House - approved provision for a 60-day delay in conscription, pending further trial of voluntary enlistments.

2—The House amendment expanding the affected age limit from the Senate-approved bracket of 21 through 30 years to 21 through 44 years.

Leaders insisted that the personal views of the conferees, registered in their previous votes on the measure, would not lessen their efforts to maintain the position taken by their respective houses—a traditional requirement.

APPROVAL SEEN

Most unbiased observers believed, however, that the final compromise submitted to both houses for ratificatio nwould provide for registration of the broader 21-44 age group, with conscription to follow immediately for those selected.

The Senate gave what some considered back handed approval of such a compromise yesterday by voting down two motions by Senator Clark (D.) of Missouri.

Clark sought to instruct the Senate conferees to accept the House amendment for a 60-day delay in

BANDITS' VICTIM IMPROVING

Oscar E. Thomas, 74-year-old filling station attendant critically wounded by bandits, today battled courageously for life at the Melrose Hospital, where signs of improvement in his condition were reported.

The aged man was shot twice by two youthful gunmen, both in shirt sleeves, as they robbed the gasoline station, at Lynn Fells Parkway and Main st., Melrose.

Despite pain and loss of blood, Thomas tried to fire his pistol at the pair as they fled, then called police to his aid before he fell unconscious.

GASPS MESSAGE

"Come quickly. There's been a holdup and I'm shot," he gasped through the telephone.

Police raced to the station in a cruising car but before they arrived a customer who drove in for gas found the aged man bleeding and in critical condition from a wound in the left chest.

With the aid of others he lifted him into his car and drove him to the Melrose Hospital. Doctors found he had been shot twice, once in the left wrist and the second time through the chest.

CAREFULLY TIMED

The holdup had been carefully timed as the route officer had left the place only a few minutes before. It is believed the robbers obtained about $50 from the cash register and what they got out of the pockets of Thomas.

On the evening of June 8, two gunmen tried to hold up the same station. The leader snatched $50 which lay on a table where it was being counted. Thomas seized a gun from a drawer and drove the pair off before they could obtain more. Police say he thwarted two earlier attempts at stickups during the past year.

Girl's Wedding Story Doubted

FALL RIVER, Sept. 10 — New mystery was added today to the case of a missing 15-year-old girl from whom, police said, her family received a letter reporting she had married.

According to the letter, Carolina Rapoza was wed shortly after her sudden disappearance Sept. 1, and now is living at her "new home on the Highlands."

Both the girl's family and police discount the story, pointing out she failed to disclose identity of her husband, or location of her home here.

Gifts totaling $40,000 to institutions caring for the deaf in Massachusetts were contained in the will of Mrs. Zira R. Grout, wealthy Brookline widow, on file today in Dedham probate court.

Largest bequest went to Clark School for the Deaf, Northampton, which received $25,000. A trust fund of $10,000 was left to a niece, Marion S. Reynolds. The only other relative mentioned, Herbert W. Harlow of Florida, received $1000.

G.O.P. Hails Maine Sweep as Sure Sign Of Willkie Victory

While returns showed a clean Republican sweep of all five major offices at stake in Maine's election, the G. O. P. from coast to coast today hailed the triumph as spelling victory for Wendell L. Willkie and the end of the New Deal.

As pluralities for the most part exceeded those of 1936 and 1938 in the Down East area, Republicans, led by Massachusetts' Cong. Joseph W. Martin, Republican national committee chairman, declared the first-in-the-nation election results definitely point to revival of the old saying, "As Maine goes—"

Sumner Sewall

Election of Sumner Sewall, Republican president of the State Senate, as Maine's new governor was assured in a plurality of more than 70,000 votes, which came close to the 75,000 votes asked by Chairman Martin.

Sewall's smashing victory was conceded by his Democratic opponent, Fulton J. Redman, lawyer, even as first returns rolled in.

In the race for the U. S. Senate, Cong. Ralph O. Brewster defeated former Democratic Gov. Louis J. Brann by nearly 45,000 votes.

WIN RE-ELECTION

Republican U. S. Reps. James C. Oliver and Margaret C. Smith won re-election easily in the first and second districts. Frank Fellows (R.), Bangor lawyer, succeeded to Brewster's seat in the third district, also with a wide lead.

The defeated Democratic congressional nominees were Peter M. MacDonald, Edward J. Beauchamp and Thomas N. Curran.

In 1936, Republicans retained a U. S. Senate seat by only 4600 votes, while piling up a 37,000 majority for their gubernatorial nominee. Two years ago the Republican gubernatorial victory margin was only 17,000.

Here is the unofficial tabulation:

For U. S. Senator—610 precincts out of 629: Brewster (R), 147,728; Brann (D), 104,342.

For Governor—610 precincts out of 620: Sewall (R), 159,970; Redman (D), 90,285.

For U. S. Representative—

First District—151 precincts out of 151: Oliver (R), 55,487; MacDonald (D.), 32,029.

Second District—201 precincts out of 209: Smith (R), 55,458; Beauchamp (D), 30,867.

Third District—256 precincts out of 269: Fellows (R), 46,138; Curran (D), 23,647.

Martin declared that Maine returns clearly indicate the country is getting back to Republicanism.

"It means wnthout doubt the election if Wendell L. Willkie, Senator McNary and a Republican House of Representatives in November," Martin said.

8 STATES BALLOT IN PRIMARIES

By International News Service

Voters in eight states balloted today in primary elections looked upon in several instances as important tests between third term advocates and supporters of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee.

The most clearly defined Roosevelt vs. Willkie issue was presented in Minnesota, where both Gov. Harold L. Stassen (R.) and Sen. Henrik Shipstead (F.-L.) seek renomination.

In Michigan Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, 81, sought renomination over six others. There were two Democratic gubernatorial candidates. Sen. Arthur H. Vandenburg (R.), strong administration critic, faced one G. O. P. opponent, and there were five Democrats seeking his togs.

Highlights of the other state primaries were:

Arizona—Sen. Henry F. Ashurst, opponent of conscription, seeking renomination against three Democratic opponents.

COLORADO — Governor Ralph Carr, first Republican Governor in 14 years, unopposed for renomination. There were three Democratic gubernatorial candidates.

LOUISIANA—Seven congressmen seek Democratic renomination in the face of Governor Sam H. Jones' criticism.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Gov. Francis P. Murphy (R.) seeks renomination. No senatorial contest.

VERMONT—Gov. George D. Aiken and Ralph E. Flanders, contesting for the Republican Senate nomination.

WASHINGTON — Gov. Clarence D. Martin (D.) seeks renomination and the first third term for a governor in the state's history. Mayor Arthur B. Langlie of Seattle and six others seek Republican gubernatorial nomination. Six Democrats and five Republican candidates for Senate post of Lewis B. Schwellenbach, appointed a federal judge. Among Republican candidates was Stephen F. Chadwick, who left the Democratic party as a result of Roosevelt's nomination for a third term.

Kelly Hits Dever Who Raps GOP

Charges of incompetency and party disloyalty were hurled at Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever by former Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly during speeches by Kelly in Worcester and Fitchburg, adding more heat today to the pair's contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Kelly asked why Dever had failed to investigate the loeses of the Boston Elevated, amounting to $19,000,000, and raised questions about the defunct Canton Mutual Insurance Co. and the unexplained disappearance of its assets.

Dever, in his speech, scored the failure of the Republican state administration to take advantage of federal funds. There is available at Washington approximately $2,500,000 which have been offered to this state for highway construction, he said.

Willkie Against Fish 60-Day Draft Delay

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 10 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie expressed hope today that Senate-House conferees would eliminate from the selective military service bill the Fish amendment postponing conscription for 60 days.

The amendment, approved by the House but not by the Senate, would defer operation of the draft while voluntary enlistments were being given a 60-day trial, after which the government could pick men to bring the total of new recruits to 400,000.

Willkie issued a formal one-sentence statement urging that the selective service program go into effect immediately. He first voiced his approval of military conscription in his acceptance address last month.

In another statement he said he was "enormously gratified" by the Maine election results.

"Apparently Governor (sic) Sewall almost doubled the majority of the Republican Governor in 1936," he said, "and Senator (sic) Brewster's defeat of former Governor Brann by a very large majority is equally impressive. I have wired both Governor Sewall and Senator Brewster my heartiest congratulations."

Willkie had a luncheon appointment today with Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher who unsuccessfully opposed him for the presidential nomination.

The nominee expects to see Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, the vice-presidential candidate, before his special train leaves for Chicago Thursday night.

Giant Band Parade Legion's Hub Thrill

Approximately 25,000 musicians, members of about 400 American Legion musical organizations, representing every state in the union, will be in the line of march for the huge legion parade to be held in this city, Tuesday, Sept. 24.

By boat, train, bus and private automobiles the bands and bugle and drum corps will converge on the Hub, not only for the convention parade, but to compete for national honors.

John J. Burke director of the registration committee, today announced that the number of musical units that have already registered or expect to do so, will exceed the number of units that participated in the record-breaking New York parade three years ago.

8 HOURS TO PASS

If the bands were to have a parade of their own, Legion officials estimated it would take nearly eight hours to pass a given point.

In state and city public buildings, Legion post quarters, parked Pullman cars on nearby railroad sidings, fraternal organization quarters and Y. M. C. A. dormitories, members of the visiting musical units will be housed during their four-day Hub stay.

Beginning Monday morning the competition for various national legion championships will open and continue through Wednesday, with the exception of Tuesday, parade day.

Among the national outstanding bands which will appear in Boston are the championship Edward Monahan Post Band of Sioux City, Iowa, famous New York City police girls band, Commonwealth Edison band, of Chicago, 1939 championship Hackensack, N. J., bugle and drum corps, New Brainfield, Texas, cowboy band, Colorado 40 and 8 band, the 77th Division Band, of New York city and St. Paul Indians, St. Paul, Minn.

MAIL POSTCARDS

The latter outfit has already mailed several thousand postcards to friends of members of the post, living in Massachusetts, announcing their intentions to stage a "T" party upon arrival.

The card reads:

"Back in 1773 you Bostonians had a social T
But ain't had no treat of late until you've seen
St. Paul's Post 8."

Members of the band are garbed in Indian costumes which are valued at $15,000.

Convention officers also revealed that the Boston conclave will have the greatest number of junior musical outfits ever assembled in a Legion convention city.

Because of the large membership in the Sons and Daughters group of the Legion, scores of new bugle annd drum corps have sprung up in the past few years.

ARMY SPEEDS 500 MILLION ARMS, PLANES PURCHASE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (INS)—The Army was ready to match the speed of the Navy today in the drive for "total" national defense as both branches of the military, toegther with the WPA, rushed gigantic plans to translate preparedness blueprints into actual ships, tanks, guns and fighting airplanes.

Developments, over which President Roosevelt took personal direction in an effort to offset criticism that the defense program was bogging down, included:

1—The War Department was expected to announce it had signed contracts of $500,000,000 as the first step in its latest $4,000,000,000 expansion program.

"AIRPLANE ROADS"

2—The Works Administration announced a $200,000,000 program to build "access roads" leading to military centers—roads that later can be broadened into airplane runways if necessary.

3—The Navy awarded contracts for 200 combatant ships to give the United States a two-ocean Navy to meet any possible combination of hostile powers. In addition, the Navy revealed it had made agreements for 2400 more planes.

Money for the army and navy work was made available yesterday when President Roosevelt signed the $5,246,600,000 "total defense" bill. As soon as presidential aids telephoned the word to Washington, the Navy announced it had let contracts for seven battleships, eight aircraft carriers, 27 cruisers, 115 destroyers, 43 submarines and one repair ship.

MUNITIONS FOR ARMY

The bill also carried funds for equipment of 1,200,000 troops and acquisition of 18,000 army planes and tanks, guns and ammunition.

President Roosevelt, it was learned today, ordered Army and Navy chiefs to proceed with all possible speed. As a result, the Army was ready to start placing large-scale orders.

At best, however, Army officials conceded that it may be late 1942 before all the equipment needed has been actually procured and stored. Some idea of the big task was reflected when it was learned the quartermaster corps was planning $82,000,000 worth of storage buildings.

Meanwhile, the Army was preparing budget estimates in which to ask the Congress for $1,000,000,000 to train men under the conscription and National Guard program.

Hub Navy Yard Force To Reach 15,000 Workers

Boston Navy Yard's working force will be increased 50 per cent as a result of the new naval expansion program, it was disclosed today.

From its present personnel of 10,400 skilled workers, the quota will reach 15,000 within a few months, according to Lieut.-Comdr. H. A. Ellis, yard public relations officer.

Twelve destroyers are in process of construction there now, and by the speedy action of the Navy Department, since President Roosevelt signed the $5,246,000,000 super-Navy bill, six more destroyer contracts have been awarded.

SIX SHIP WAYS

Today the yard hummed at a speed unrivalled since World War days.

Contractors were busy demolishing an outmoded building to make space for two new ship ways, which will bring the total of ways up to six. A structural steel fabricating plant was under construction to fashion steel plate into turrets, decks, bridges and other parts.

At the same time, eight other destroyers of the 153-Class were nearing readiness for the dash to Canada.

On one of the ways was the Williams; in drydock the Haraden. The Mackenzie and Abbot, in the yard since last week, had steam up and were ready to move when ordered.

Four other destroyers in this class were in various stages of being repaired and supplied.

$700,000,000 TO N. E.

Marked increase in employment at Charlestown is only one result of the award of nearly $700,000,000 by the Navy to New England yards. The Navy Yard, in addition to its contracts of $46,600,000 for new destroyers, will spend $1,789,000 for its plant improvements.

Fore River plant of the Bethlehme Shipbuilding Corp. expects to increase its personnel of 2400 to more than 16,500 men to complete construction of six cruisers and four aircraft carriers ordered by the Navy at a cost of $368,000,000.

RUIN SPREAD OVER LONDON

as the attacks continue the toll will soon overtake the total of 1075 dead which Prime Minister Winston Churchill officially announced for the entire month of August.

Shortly before noon delayed action bombs were still exploding in the center of the city as it dug itself out from the ruins with its wounds gaping but its spirit still undaunted.

The government announced that the Germans scattered bombs "at random over London without distinction as to objectives," that a maternity hospital was twice attacked and that fires were started close to St. Paul's and London's famous Guildhall.

Although jumpy and red-eyed, London's millions were far from being dismayed by the severity of the three successive night-long German raids, and on all sides their reaction was:

"We'll take all Hitler's got to offer so long as the RAF gives Berlin and all Germany the same kind of treatment."

BATTLE BOMB FIRES

The London Times warned that the night raids may be intensified still further and called upon Londoners to "steel themselves to endure repetition of ordeals already undergone."

For eight hours hundreds of firemen fought amid falling bombs and crashing debris to check the flames in the immediate vicinity of St. Paul's where, with the aid of incendiary bombs, fires broke out in several localities.

This morning the ancient cathedral still towered over the surrounding flame-blackened buildings.

London's latest disatsrous attack lasted nine hours and two minutes before the all-clear sighal finally sounded at 5:40 a. m. (12:40 a. m., E. S. T.). It was the second longest raid of the war, exceeded only by the record nine hour, 37 minute raid Sunday night and Monday morning.

When the German raiders departed at last, Germany's Big Berthas on the French channel coast and British long-range guns on Britain's southeastern coastline were still locked in a fierce trans-channel duel—their second within nine hours.

USE SUPER-BOMBS

The Germans again used their heavy-caliber super-bombs in last night's raid. In certain areas only one of these missiles proved powerful enough to render whole blocks of flats and modern apartments untenable.

As late as 6 a. m. one large fire and several smaller ones were still blazing.

The government issued an angry communique to describe the latest German terror attacks on London. Mincing no words, it stated:

"Following heavy losses inflicted upon Germany by our fighters and repulse of his attacks yesterday evening, the enemy now has thrown off all pretense of confining himself to military targets.

"Reports received during the night show that bombs were scattered at random over London without distinction as to objectives.

NOTHING ESCAPES FURY

"They have fallen on the city and have caused fires in the immediate vicinity of St. Paul's Cathedral and the Guildhall.

"They have fallen on a large maternity hospital, which was twice attacked and where a number of casualties were caused.

"They have fallen on a poor law institution for the aged, on a London County Council estate and on large numbers of workmen's cottages, especially in the east end of London, which was heavily and repeatedly attacked. They have also been scattered on residential district in West and North London.

"There was little enemy activity over the rest of Great Britain. Some bombs were dropped on a town in Northwest England and on rural districts in the southwest, causing damage, but no casualties were reported.

"The number of casualties caused in London last night is not yet available.

"Fifty-two raiders were destroyed yesterday.

"Casualties in the Sunday night raid (on London), as far as is known, amounted to 286 dead and approximately 1440 seriously injured."

MANY HOMES RAZED

This morning, even before the all-clear sounded, fire engines hurtled toward the chief blaze. Most other fires in the central London area were brought well under control or virtually extinguished by fire brigades and air raid precaution squads, working heroically despite the ever present drone of the raiders above.

Twenty-two houses on two adjoining streets were demolished in one East London section and many casualties were known to have been caused in this particular spot. Some of the dead and injured were still trapped under wreckage and debris.

A number of casualties also were reported to have resulted when bombs struck the maternity hospital in central London. A hospital for children, in the same region, and a third hospital on the outskirts of the city were hit.

The bomb that struck the Children's Hospital shattered the roof, blew out every window in the building and started a fire on the top floor. Almost by a miracle, there were no casualties.

A number of business places in the city were damaged by high explosives and at ltast one large building in this famous central region was rendered dangerous by fire and a high explosive bomb.

RAF Blasts Berlin

ler's promise of thousandfold retaliation, accept the new British challenge."

An earlier statement said that enemy planes had penetrated over northern Germany and "dropped bombs on various places, including some northern Berlin suburbs. A number of apartment houses became the victims of deliberate enemy attacks on non-military objectives."

Berlin's air raid warning sounded at 1:45 a. m. The all clear came 40 minutes later.

The official Berlin radio flared in anger against the new R. A. F. raids:

"Churchill's cabinet of criminals carries the responsibility for further intensification of this aerial warfare. May England remember Hitler's speech in the Sportpalast when he warned that Germany was determined to retaliate against British outrages with sharpest measures of reprisal."

Only one British plane, it was claimed, actually succeeded in piercing through the air defenses of Greater Berlin. This machine dropped explosive and incendiary bombs on the northern suburb of Rosenthal, damaging several houses and setting two barns on fire. No casualties were announced.

An Associated Press Berlin dispatch said three German submarines were reported by informed sources to have sunk 82,000 tons of British shipping.—Editor's note.

Prior to the Berlin raid alarm an announcement said a group of British planes flew over the German coast, but was forced to turn back near Wesermuende by heavy anti-aircraft fire.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Still more swiftly speeds your voice on the streamlined highways of your telephone. Between HERE and THERE — no hills, no curves, no intersections. Across the continent is no more than just across your living room. Effortlessly as you turn in your chair, mind speaks to mind, heart to heart, voice to voice — by telephone.

Great advances in telephone communication are the joint result of research, manufacturing, and operation. Bell Telephone Laboratories and the Western Electric Company . . . centralizing research and manufacturing for the Bell System . . . continually aid your New England Company to improve your telephone service, keep it far ahead of telephone service in any other country. Yet the cost of this continually improving service is kept the lowest possible.

'Johnny Belinda' Premiere at Wilbur; Helen Craig Stars

Hints of Power In New Drama

By PEGGY DOYLE

There's poignancy and an occasional hint of power in Elmer Harris' new play, "Johnny Belinda," which opened last night at the Wilbur Theater. But as entertainment it is not in a class with Wynn's follies at the Shubert.

As a matter of fact, "Johnny Belinda" frequently listens like a class in Braille—which certainly is no way for a play to sound off in these tempestuous days of Sept., 1940, when there is supposed to be no time for anything but comedy.

Comedy? "Johnny Belinda" gets to be the direst tragedy at times, with "Black" McDonald, getting his rape . . . and his deafmute daughter, Belinda, eventually using it with fatal effect on her betrayer, the swaggering Locky McCormick, whom Willaid Parker makes persuasive.

That's all there is—there isn't any one except "Dr." Horace McNally uneasily trying to teach the pretty dumbmute, played by Helen Craig, the intricacies of the soundless language.

In a most demanding role Helen Craig's deafmute is a sensitively contrived characterization, wan, appealing, fearful and afraid. Here is a really difficult assignment and she is discharging it with infinite skill.

Giving solidarity to the father-daughter sessions is the full-bodied performance of Louis Hector. There is an earthiness, a vitality and Hector's portrayal that nicely dovetails Miss Craig's carefully planned exits.

Shorter and funnier are Leslie Bingham's Mrs. Lutz, an apologetic free-spoken gossip, and Maggie McDonald's soft-hearted but peppy palaverings.

But interesting as some of these people are some of the time, there is no indication that here is heart-searing drama . . . even though some of the elements are represented. "Johnny Belinda" barely gets beyond providing a lesson in Braille, and even with Miss Florence Lewis May's expert assistance this is hardly sufficient to lure the customers into the theater.

Georgia Sothern Headlines Gala Howard Bill

The Old Howard's fast and funny revue, "Ridin' High," starring the dynamic Sothern, is proving a popular attraction at this well-patronized burlesque house. Miss Sothern, otherwise known as "the human dynamo," lives up to her reputation, giving a performance that is sensational. Featured in the cast of 60 are the beautiful Alyan Payne and the comic Max Fuhrman.

'HIRED WIFE' AT KEITH'S THURSDAY; BENCHLEY IN CAST

Comedian in Merry Film

A funny man by accident

Briefly, that tells the story of comedian Robert Benchley, starred, with Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Virginia Bruce in Universal's "Hired Wife," opening Thursday on Keith-Memorial screen.

Graduating from Harvard in 1912, Benchley embarked upon the very sane career of an advertising man. Then he went into newspaper work. During the last year of the World War he served as secretary to the Aircraft Board in Washington.

It was after the Armistice that Benchley, started making people laugh. And he's been at it ever since.

As dramatic editor of Life from 1920 to 1929, Bob made his name known throughout the country with his pungent comments on shows and show personalities. Then he joined the New Yorker as dramatic critic, continuing his humorous writings.

Later, Benchley became a laugh-producer on a really large scale. He signed to do a series of motion picture shorts. One of the first of these, "How to Sleep," won the Academy Award for novelty short subjects in 1935.

Keith-Memorial's second feature on the forthcoming bill will be "Men Against the Sky," with Richard Dix and Wendy Barrie. Supporting players include Kent Taylor, Edmund Lowe, Donald Briggs and Grant Withers.

ROSALIND RUSSEL and Brian Aherne in a scene from "Hired Wife," opening Thursday at the Keith Memorial.

conscription. The Chamber rejected this, 48 to 19.

Four of the Senate's six conferees—Senators Sheppard (D.) of Texas, Thomas (D.) of Utah, Minton (D.) of Indiana, and Austin (R.) of Vermont—joined the majority against Clark. Thomas announced that Senator Bridges (R.) of New Hampshire, an absent conferee, likewise would have opposed the proposal had he been present.

Senator Reynolds (D.) of North Carolina, the sixth conferee, was not recorded but previously had voted for an unsuccessful 60-day delay amendment when the bill was before the Senate.

Of the five House conferees, Representatives May (D.) of Kentucky, Thomason (D.) of Texas, Harter (D.) of Ohio, and Andrews (R.) of New York, voted against the 60-day delay when it was written into the bill by a 267 to 2[illegible] House vote last week. Rep. Short (R.) of Missouri, the fifth House conferee, favored the proposal.

The Senate also refused, on Clark's motion, to instruct its conferees to insist on retention of the 21-30 age limit on registrations. The vote was 44 to 23 against this proposal.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, told reporters, however, that he did not believe these votes were binding on the conferees.

Senator Clark's two proposals and an attempt by Senator Adams (D.) of Colorado to send the House-approved measure unchanged to the White House without any conference, provoked a new blast of conscription debate in the Senate yesterday.

Adams' proposal was shouted down on a voice vote after Senators Barkley, Connally (D.) of Texas and other conscription supporters had denounced the House amendment providing for a delay in the operation of conscription.

Supporting Adams' proposal, Senator Johnson (R.) of California, recently renominated on both the Republican and Democratic tickets in his state, asserted:

"This is the most sinister bill ever passed during my long term as a United States Senator."

Barkley said the 60-day delay, sponsored in the House by Rep. Fish (R.) of New York, was appropriately named the Fish amendment because "it doesn't fish for soldiers—it fishes for votes in November."

During the debate Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana, declared that the peacetime conscription bill was going to be a club over the head of American workers.

Rumans Nab Carol's Cash, Fire Generals

BUCHAREST, Sept. 10 (AP)—Dismissal of eleven Rumanian generals, held partly responsible for Rumania's recent loss of territory was announced today as Gen. Ion Antonescu, military dictator, continued his investigation of former King Carol's regime.

The decree dismissing the men, who included Constantine Argetoianu, a former premier, and Ion Ilcusu, former war minister, said they practiced political activity contrary to the good of the state and used "flattery to gain high office."

How badly Carol himself fared when he abdicated last week was still a matter of conjecture. The King left a vast "personal empire" under the shadow of expropriation when he went into exile.

HAD PLANTED WEALTH

However, he had shrewdly converted many of his ancestral holdings into cash long ago, informed sources said.

Whether he carried any of this cash with him in his flight was not known but he and his small retinue, including the red-haired Magda Lupescu, travelled on a 10-car railway train filled with no one knows what.

Millions of dollars worth of his stock in armament companies, sugar refineries, locomotive works and gold mines already have been sequestered by Gen. Ion Antonescu, the nation's new military dictator, who now is reported planning similar action against the former monarch's real estate holdings.

INCLUDES VINEYARDS

The "empire" left by the dethroned king—who now is in Lugano, Switzerland, seeking sanctuary in the United States, South America, on the island of Madeira or on the French Riviera—includes vineyards stretching as far as the eye can see.

The best Rumanian wines are made in these vineyards. In addition, his holdings include vast wine cellars with all-glass hogsheads the size of gasoline trucks, expensive sugar plantations, apiaries which produce rare and expensive honey, hunting lodges scattered throughout the nation and six or seven great estates.

rected toward Portugal as hope faded that the Vichy government would authorize him to reside on the French Riviera.

Members of Carol's suite said if France refused to welcome the dethroned Rumanian monarch and his friend, Magda Lupescu, they probably would settle near Lisbon.

Carol and Mme. Lupescu remained secluded in their apartments today. They have the companionship of a pair of Pekinese and two hunting dogs.

Italian Airmen Blast Holy Land Centers

ROME, Sept. 10 (INS)—Devastating Italian air raids on widespread areas of British territory from the Holy Land to Egypt were announced today in an official communique which stated in part:

"Italian aviation was particularly active in the eastern Mediterranean and carried out violent raids on Port Jaffa, Palestine, and the Alexandria-Mersamatruh railroad.

"At Jaffa, port structures and important depots were hit, starting vast fires.

"Alexandria-Mersamatruh railroad structures were seriously damaged, and one train was directly hit, blowing fragments high into the air."

F.D. Due to Approve Water Carrier Control

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt was expected today to give his approval soon to legislation putting inland and coastal water carriers under federal regulation similar to that covering train and motor transportation.

The measure won final congressional approval yesterday after a controversy lasting nearly two years.

British List Losses in Ships

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Germans and Italians destroyed 85[illegible] tons of British and neutral merchant shipping in the week ending Sept. 1, the British admiralty reported today, bringing the total for the first year of the war to 2,771,333 tons.

The admiralty said German and Italian shipping losses from the start of the war to September 9 totalled 1,236,000 tons.

The losses for the last week reported 11 British, five Allied and four neutral ships were said to be in excess of the average weekly loss since the war began, but below the average weekly loss since May 27, when the fighting was intense.

A FEW EXCERPTS FROM JEFFERSON

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

An occasional article finds its way into the neighboring Republican column contributed by a group of estimable gentlemen who style themselves "Democrats-For-Willkie." In their own unhappy words, they are refugees, or evacuees, who were compelled to abandon the ancient political faith because of their distaste for the "dictatorship trend" of the Roosevelt Administration.

Thomas Jefferson

The sorry plight of a refugee always awakens a feeling of compassion and yet for the sake of accuracy, a better title should be coined to embrace this particular band of nameless patriots. "Republicans-Before-Willkie" would be far more apt and fitting. Because most of these gentlemen left the Democratic Party long before the third term issue was ever heard of. Back in 1936, they contributed wads of money and very few votes to the Kansas Giant, Alf Landon, who was the current favorite to meet and whip "the champ," as Mr. Willkie so tastefully calls the President.

Of course, the mere fact that these good folks are able to bolt the Roosevelt ticket without fear of reprisal or personal harm is proof in itself that the dictatorship argument is so much bunk. Dictators have a series of quick and ready remedies for dissenters—the club, the gun and the concentration camp. A few twists of the radio knob should reassure any timid soul who fears such harsh methods over here. The Get Rid of Roosevelt chorus, booming over the air waves, is in heartier voice than it ever was.

WE CLAIM JEFFERSON

The so-called Willkie Democrats have the right, as citizens in a democracy, to adopt the tenets of the Republican Party but we dispute their right to take Thomas Jefferson in tow and drag him along with them. The long leap from Jefferson to Willkie is too great. The Sage of Monticello would never feel at home in the party of Herbert Hoover and Ham Fish, Joe Pew and Ernie Weir, the Liberty League and the Utilities magnates, and the odd assortment of die-hards and reactionaries who comprise the present heirs of Alexander Hamilton.

The glory of Thomas Jefferson lies in his never-ending fight to protect and safeguard the social and political interests of common men and women. He was denounced in his day, as Roosevelt is denounced now, because he dared to stand against the power of concentrated wealth and the selfish purposes of those who wanted to convert the young Republic into a plutocracy.

Those who appropriated the Jeffersonian mantle for the Willkie cause are selective Jeffersonians. They employ a few of his opinions and conveniently ignore the rest. They say the founder of the Democratic Party opposed a third term. He did, at one time. He also opposed a second term, or a third term, or a fourth term for members of the Senate and House of Representatives. He said one term was enough, after which the incumbent should retire. The majority of Senators and Representatives are veterans of many terms, including Charles L. McNary, the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee.

Jefferson said there was one condition which might cause him to change his mind about a third term—"a circumstance which could engage my acquiescence in another election, to wit: such a division about a successor as might bring in a monarchist." When Jefferson said a "monarchist," he had in mind the followers of Mr. Hamilton who never surrendered their secret desire to set up a ruling house.

THE "RADICAL"

Jefferson was a "radical" whose opinions would shiver the timbers of complacent Republicans.

"I hold it that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing, as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical."

Jefferson had a few words to say about the arrogance of corporate wealth.

"I hope we shall . . . crush in its birth the aristocracy of our money corporations, which dare already to challenge our government to a trial of strength and bid defiance to the laws of our country."

The name of Jefferson was invoked to condemn President Roosevelt's plan to enlarge the membership of the Supreme Court. Here is what he said about the judiciary:

"The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working underground to undermine the foundation of our confederated fabric."

Jefferson said his proclamation, after the attack on the warship Chesapeake, was the only act ever approved by his opponents.

"And when I found they approved of it, I confess I began strongly to apprehend I had done wrong, and to exclaim with the Psalmist, 'Lord, what have I done that the wicked should praise me'"

No individual should assume to say what Jefferson would do if he were alive today. But if he or any other man voiced today the opinions which he voiced in his lifetime, he would be scrambling for his life—with the Willkie Democrats hot on his heels.

BLUM AND ROOSEVELT

(Provided by the National Committee of Democrats-For-Willkie)
(Authorized by the Republican National Committee)

In 1937 Leon Blum, Premier of France, made a speech to a convention of government employes in which he said: "France's military equipment is more extensive today than the country has ever known before." Blum was head of the "Popular Front," otherwise known as the French New Deal. The outstanding belief of the Popular Front was that France could spend her way back to prosperity. Blum spent the money, all right, but prosperity failed to appear. Then he found himself facing the need of a vast rearmament program to meet the Hitler menace, but without the cash or credit to pay for it. He was on the spot. He made some speeches about the fine condition of the French defenses, like the sample quoted above, tried unsuccessfully to raise money, and eventually went out of circulation.

Leon Blum
He said France was prepared

France has since gone out of circulation, too.

France's bad luck under the policy of spending lavishly but failing to arm adequately seems to us to hold a few lessons for America.

Our resources are many times greater, but we have been operating along the same lines. We can still pay the bill for preparedness, but despite reassuring utterances from Washington, we are woefully unprepared and we are going to remain so unless the present set-up there is drastically revamped.

Let's admit that Mr. Roosevelt has done a good job in building up the Navy, in the face of some opposition in Congress. The Navy is his baby. He loves it like a father. He likes to ride in battleships, watch the fleet maneuver, discuss strategy with admirals. It's lucky for us that in this important branch of defense, the national interest also happened to be a Presidential hobby.

But how about the air force, and the regular army, and the National Guard, and the future draft army?

Have we got the planes for them? Have we got the tanks? Have we got the anti-aircraft batteries, and the anti-tank guns, and the automatic rifles and the thousand and one other weapons and gadgets needed in war today? Are we going to get them soon, and if so, how soon?

WHERE ARE THE PLANES?

A pretty convincing answer to these questions is to be found in the following front page dispatch from Washington last week to the New York Times:

> "The United States Army has fewer than 300 first line combat planes, of which only fifty-nine are heavy bombers . . . Fewer than 1500 more modern fighting planes have so far been ordered for delivery in 1940 and 1941, of which only 176 are heavy bombers . . . Orders placed by the War Department since May 1, include tanks, semi-automatic rifles, anti aircraft guns, anti-tank guns, and modern heavy artillery total only $75,000,000
> "The Army has 53,132 semi-automatic rifles and 70,700 on order . . . It has only one modern 90 mm. anti-aircraft gun, with 78 additional on order, and 349 to be bought in the near future . . The figures indicate that the Army possesses only 250 anti-tank guns, that it has ordered 500 more, and that it plans to order 500 in the near future."

These disturbing statistics are as of last week. There is an imposing plan for 18,000 Army and Navy planes (part of which will be for combat) to be ordered or purchased sometime. But if we had to go to war next month, or even next year—well, figure it out for yourself.

AFTER A YEAR OF WAR

So it seems to us that, up to now, the Administration has flopped on defense, after a full year of lessons written in the blood of Poland and Belgium and Holland and France.

And since war nowadays is mostly a matter of industry, we doubt if we'll have real preparedness as long as Knudsen and Stettinius and the other industrial experts now trying to speed up the manufacture of munitions are hampered by the little group of ambitious men around the President.

These ambitious men, who are demanding a third term for Mr. Roosevelt, and incidentally for themselves, have never been able to team up with industry and they never will. Not that industry has had a lily white record in a lot of cases, but we doubt if an industry run by angels could play ball with this group. They remind us forcibly of the Blum crowd in France, who schemed, theorized and fiddled away the time in which they could have put their military and industrial machine in shape—but didn't.

That's why we Democrats-For-Willkie, unlike the Democrats-For-Roosevelt branch of our party, want a change in Washington. Mr. Willkie is known to the nation as an able executive who gets along fine with capital and labor. We think he would show results from industry in building up our defense machine rapidly, smoothly and completely.

We don't think that (outside of the Navy) Mr. Roosevelt has shown any particular results on defense, and we don't think he is likely to by the time they will be essential.

All of which strikes us as another strong reason for refusing him a third term and putting Willkie in the driver's seat, if any more reasons are needed.

THERE is little hope for the establishment of a military training unit this Fall at Dartmouth College, one of America's foremost institutions of higher learning.

But failure to participate in the nation's preparedness program is not Dartmouth's fault.

The college's chief officer, President Ernest Martin Hopkins, makes that fact clear.

In early Summer, President Hopkins wrote to high ranking authorities in the Army, Navy and Marine branches of the national service.

Dartmouth, he said, would adopt any feasible training plan that would be recommended.

Dartmouth would conform to whatever request might come from Washington.

Politely, President Hopkins' patriotic offer was acknowledged. And, politely, it was rejected.

With wonted courtesy and bluntness, officials dismissed the matter with the explanation that the conscription and national defense programs will probably preclude the creation of further college units for defense.

So what happens?

Simply this: Intelligent young men who could be trained for military service as they continue their scholastic education, are not going to be trained.

And Dartmouth, which sincerely wants to contribute an important something to the country's strength and impregnability, seems destined to lose the opportunity.

Was our good President, whose administration has spent seven billion dollars for preparedness without getting much of it, thinking of the Dartmouth incident when he went classical the other day and observed "Tempus Fugit" (Time Flies)?

WHILE BOMBS FALL in Britain and Germany, snuffing out the lives of thousands, Death in our own land is reaping a similar grim harvest.

Last week, 22 persons succumbed to injuries sustained in Massachusetts automobile accidents.

The number was seven higher than that for the corresponding period in 1939.

It raised to 368 the fatality total of the past eight months.

It prompted Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin to declare:

"Fast driving, drunken driving and skidding were the main factors in these accidents in 18 different communities.

"Two occupants were killed in one crash, and three in another.

"All of which indicates the necessity of more enforcement of the law and of the rules for safe driving by the police, the courts and other authorities."

We disagree with the Registrar on the use of "indicates" in his last sentence.

The word should be DEMANDS.

If patrolmen, who are employed and paid to patrol highways and prevent accidents, are lax and negligent, they should be removed and encouraged to find jobs more suited to their talents, or lack of talents.

When the lives of men, women and children are jeopardized by law-breaking motorists, officials should not be obliged to appeal to public servants to do their duty.

Officials, particularly the Registrar of Motor Vehicles, should ORDER it.

THE EUROPEAN WAR has a direct and interesting effect on education in Massachusetts.

Because Old World nations are acquiring or losing territory with breath-taking rapidity as opposing armies clash on the various fronts, our school authorities find many of their hitherto-fore accurate geography and history books to be as outmoded as last year's calendar.

As a result, some of the more prudent teachers are using newspapers and Sunday supplement pages in their classrooms.

We favor the idea. Students should make the acquaintance of newspapers earlier. After all, boys and girls will read them long after they have forgotten the contents of most textbooks.

Still, there is a great deal in history and geography books, including the ones that were popular in Lincoln's day, that ought not to be ignored at this time.

For instance, the developments that led up to the defeat of Ancient Greece and the fall of Rome. Also, the great obstacles that were overcome by oppressed generations before democracy became a reality.

The youth who studies those chapters of history and geography will better appreciate his own American heritage and more sincerely resolve to preserve it.

"HOW LONG would it take Hitler to build a tunnel under the English channel?" asks a 14-year-old lad. Well, son, the last figures on cost and time of English channel building were released in 1919. It was then said it would cost $150,000,000 and take five years, Lloyd George, then premier, turned the channel tunnel proposition down. He was afraid it might some time be used to invade England. It was also turned down in 1924 and 1930.

SPEAKING of changes of names, take John Garfield, whose real name is Julius Garfinkel . . . Myrna Loy, born August second, is therefore a Leo. I am not a Myrna Loy fan. She seems a little too mechanical to me. The Leo woman it is said must be the "leader in her home" or she isn't happy. This department has no information of the state of affairs in the home of Myrna and her husband, Arthur Hornblow, Jr. . . . The following remark worth noting is by Marjorie Greenbie: "If people would only open their mouths and talk honestly they would find themselves much cleverer than they supposed."

TEN sons of military age! That's what Mrs. Laura Hendricks of Van Nuys, Cal., has. Seven of these sons served in the armed forces of the U. S. A. in the World War. The two daughters of Mrs. Hendricks are married to World War veterans . . . Another who had No. 258, the first number drawn in draft of 1917, was Earl Belknap of Lincoln Park, Mich. Earl, now 45, is the father of 10 children, nine daughters and one son. Imagine being the father of nine daughters! It costs twice as much to raise a daughter as a son. And then consider the plight of a boy with nine sisters. Or is that good. I only had one sister so wouldn't know.

A YOUNG MATRON who is a blonde, a Stanford graduate and features a "tomato-mouthed" makeup, is pretty angry at this department and Cecil B. De Mille. "Why are you always casting reflections on the mental capacity of blondes?" she asks. "What has being a blonde to do with a girl's I. Q.? As for those remarks by Cecil De Mille as to 'tomato-mothed' females, I wish to say I use that type of make up and my husband likes it that way. After all who is Cecil B. De Mille?" While it is true Mr. De Mille did object strongly to "tomato-mouth" make up and I did say lipstick that came off on everything was not so good I have never cast any reflections on the mental capacity of blondes. That is, natural blondes. As for highly bleached blondes I will say the fact they are that way does have something to do with their I. Q. But we will not go into that at this time.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

HYDE PARK, Sept. 10 — The service Sunday was an impressive one. All the hymns stressed the fact that this was a day when we were praying for peace.

After his sermon, our minister, Mr. Frank Wilson, explained that Sunday, the President had asked us all to join in a prayer for peace. Mr. Wilson told us that prayer does not mean something that you say only on one occasion. It is a continuing thing, something you carry in your heart and mind all the time and it moulds much of your active life.

I have seen several articles lately in which people have seemed to feel that we are drifting into war. One after the other has said that this or that individual action, or government action, brought us nearer to participation in the European cataclysm. I look at it entirely differently.

IT SEEMS to me that a firm, strong attitude is more apt to keep us out of war. War is a mass movement, but masses are made up of individuals.

An individual is much more apt to be bullied and badgered until he finally turns upon his assailant and finds himself in a fight, if he is weak and indecisive in character and allows his opponent to take the offensive.

An individual, however, who feels strong and full of self-confidence does not invite the aggressor.

I feel that as a nation we should be that kind of individual, not wanting to bully anyone, not wanting to take anything away from anyone, but feeling so self-confident and strong that no one desires to oppose us.

After lunch Sunday, I went down to Poughkeepsie to say a few words at the unveiling of a monument to General Pulaski. The general did much to help us gain our freedom and it is only right that we should honor him and remember him among our heroes, particularly at this time when freedom everywhere is threatened again. Quite a crowd gathered at the monument and one interesting incident occurred.

A few years ago, the women's division of the Democratic State Committee held some essay contests and we had a boy who represented Dutchess County as one of the winners. He was an interesting young boy who has now grown to be a young man and is practicing law in Poughkeepsie and managing the campaign for our Democratic candidate for Congress.

He proved to be my escort at this Polish celebration. I think he is progressing well and I know that it gave me great pleasure to see him again. I am wishing him success in all his undertakings.

Our Norwegian friends left us yesterday, so we all had a picnic supper Sunday night out by the big fireplace on the picnic grounds.

FORMER MATE GREETS MISS LEIGH

By Leonard Lyons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10 -When Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh decided to be married, they arranged the details with great secrecy. The decision was a last-minute one, and the only persons who shared the secret were the Justice of the Peace, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Colman and Garson Kanin . . . Neither their secretary nor their servants were aware of the wedding plans, and they notified no member of their families . . . They drove to Santa Barbara at night and, after the ceremony, went to an appointed way station, where their cars were switched, to avoid recognition. Then, assured of complete freedom of detection, the newlyweds drove to their honeymoon cottage . . .

On the doorstep was a message which just had arrived—a congratulatory cable from London, dispatched 24 hours earlier to arrive at that moment. It expressed best wishes for a long and happy marriage. It was sent by Leigh Holman, Vivien's former husband.

THE WEDDING PARTY was late in arriving, and the impatient Justice of the Peace did not know that the couple who had secured a marriage license under the name of Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh Holman were movie stars. But when he saw the couple he recognized them, and beamed . . . "We want a very short ceremony," Olivier directed . . . "Okay," the official agreed. "I'll give you the shortest ceremony you ever saw." He proceeded—but forgot their names. When he finally concluded he wanted to express some indication of his knowledge that he was marrying two famous members of the motion picture colony. That's why the justice who married Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh concluded the ceremony with: "I now pronounce you man and wife" . . . and then coyly added the singular word: "Bingo!"

OLIVIER EXPECTS to return to England as soon as he has completed his flying course. He now has 88 solo flying hours to his credit. As soon as he has the required 250 hours of training he will join the RAF . . . There, too, are Olivier's son and his ex-wife.

ANOTHER WEDDING story concerns the marriage of Charles Lederer, the screen writer, and Virginia Welles, former wife of Orson Welles . . . It was a dignified ceremony, complete in every detail. After the groom had placed the ring upon the bride's finger and the parson had made the final pronouncement which made them one forevermore, Lederer turned to his bride, tenderly, and then said to her: "Okay. Now beat it."

JAPAN STILL permits American film companies to exhibit their quota of films throughout the Empire, but exercises the right to select those movies which the censoring officials feel will not disturb the morale of the Japanese people . . . Films which portray typical scenes in American life are taboo. Nate Blumberg, head of Universal, revealed, for example, that such movies as "When Tomorrow Comes" and "Hired Wife" have been banned in Japan, for they describe American standards of living, which are far superior to the Japanese, and so may upset the complacency of the ordinary, sacrificing moviegoer there. But such films as "Destry Rides Again," and the Dalton series, are welcomed in Tokio—for they present Americans as irresponsible, erratic, gun-totin', murderin' and drinking folk.

GEORGE MURPHY IN LLOYD'S FILM

By Loulla O. Parsons

George Murphy

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10 George Murphy should be very flattered this morning. Harold Lloyd personally selected him to play the "boy" in the picture "Three Girls and a Gob," the first film Harold has ever produced without himself in the star part. Come to think of it George has a lot of the wholesome American appeal that was Harold's chief stock in trade but if you're wondering, George is not going to don the Lloyd specs.

Everyone who is working with Harold on his new as a producer has nothing but swell things to say. He never been one to think he can do the whole thing, himself and Grover Jones, who scripted, and Richard Wallace, who is to direct are far from "yes" men to Producer Lloyd. They both agreed that George was a good choice for the male lead and so promptly he was borrowed from MeG-M. Lucille Ball, who is elected to play the girl, plunges in Monday from New York.

THE LAST TIME I saw Rene Clair, the famous French director, he was making "Break the News" at Pinewood, outside London. How well we both remember the incident yesterday when I talked with him here in Hollywood. One of the best Continental directors, he has made such pictures as "The Ghost Goes West" with Robert Donat and "Under the Paris Roofs" and many others. He told me that he was just getting ready to film a picture in the South of France when the German invasion changed every Frenchman's plans and sent the lucky ones scurrying out of the country. All the studios are bidding for Clair's services but for the time being, at least, he will rest here with his wife and little son at the Beverly Hills Hotel for he has been through a very harrowing time.

I was told today that he will don the grease paint with Cesar Romero in "Romance of the Rio Grande." No matter how far an actor goes afield from his profession, he always wants to act. You Can Be Beautiful

Real Southern Fragrance

By ARLINE GOULD

ANY FRAGRANCE so good that it's enough to send dreams spinning through the mind of the most unsusceptible male, is good enough to repeat again and again, so its emphasis couldn't be missed . . . and that's what has been done with a wonderful moonlight - and - lace fragrance which rocketed into favor but a short time ago.

Now . . . instead of being available only in toilet water . . . it comes in an almost unbelievable array of fragrance-making items . . . from three sizes of soap, to prettily boxed tablet sachets, ready to carry the delicate aroma to lingerie, handkerchiefs and gloves.

It's a floral bouquet, with over five scents skillfully blended so the result is a floral fragrance with a certain sophistication . . . in spite of its simple, sweet name!

You'll be delighted with the packaging of every bath aid . . . they're all daintily done up in antique-type green glass bottles with bubbly surfaces, or in white boxes that have a twined profusion of flowers, blue birds and festoons of yellow rope . . . all suggesting the romance of the deep South, where the flowers and the idea originated.

The bath salts are contained in a bottle similar to that of the original toilet water, complete with green glass stopper, and a quaint booklet giving the language of flowers popular in the days of early America.

There are about nine different bath aids, perfume, and two of the darlingest gift boxes you've ever seen . . . all celebrating the popularity of this romantic scent.

If you'd like to learn all about this unusual dream-fraught Southern fragrance in bath aids and perfume, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

FOR DAINTINESS and feminine charm, the smart girl uses the newest flower-freighted bath aids . . . all done up in Southern-romance effect and scent, all the containers with motifs of early America, or in copies of antique bottles . . . Arline Gould tells about them today.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

I FOUND OUT, long ago, that I must keep myself amused or bust—so much.
So I picked myself a brand new attitude.
Want to hear it? Here it is. Hope it helps, partner.

I've lived a lot—
Made a mess
Of most of it—
Yet I'm proud!
Risked a lot,
Lost a lot,
Cracked my heart
Because of it—
Yet I'm proud!
Always biting off
More'n I could chew—
Always trying crazy stunts
No sane galoot would do—
Earning money
And wasting it—
Getting a chance
And muffing it—
Being laughed at
Being cussed at,
Taken for a ride,
AND YET I'M PROUD

Why'm I proud?
Listen 'n' learn from me—
For this goes for you
And you and you
As well as it does
For me—
Here's why I'm proud!
No match how wacky
I've been—
I've loved life!
And dared to use it
To the limit—
Not holding back,
Or hedging
Or counting the cost—
But letting go
And jumping in
Right to my neck'

Of course I got hurt
And I hurt others
I'm not proud of that—
I'm plenty sad for
The pain I've given
And the help
I failed to give—
But you can't live
Yesterday over—and so
My motto's "Le's go"
Forget the smears—
Make a new deal, kid—
What's the use of picking
Yourself in tears!"

I guessed wrong—often!
Yet I'm proud
Because I dared to guess
And make my own decisions
Even if they flopped—
And still kept
Right on going
When they flopped—
I'm proud because
I'm sometimes brave
Even if I'm a coward—
And sometimes honest
Even if I'm a liar—
Proud because
Something in me
Has always been
Taller and finer
Than my outside stuff—

And when
The long trail's done
And I must face
The payoff that's
Awaiting overhead—
And stand in line
'N' hear my record read,
Where all the Flunders
Sit, sly, pan as slick
And Joe Hop, tearing
What I've worked
For
I'll be glad how
The answer I will give
Just this—
"Big Boss—I know
"I've made a mess
"Of the whole show—
"I guess this life
"You gave me was too grand
"To fit my fumbling hand
"And dizzy head
"So if You want
"To shoot the works
"Go right ahead—
"And yet—there's something
"That I'd like to say
"Before I fade,
"And that is this—

"I know I haven't
"Played the game so well
"But, Boss, I always thought
"Your gift of Life was swell!
"Too swell to waste
"In lussy-fooling around
"And playing safe—
"So—well
"I guess there's no denying
"I was wild—
"And sometimes bad—
"But, Boss,
"I tried to live it
"Like your child,
"With all I had!
"And if that
"Buys me hell—
"I'LL STILL BE PROUD!"

What if it is—
"THAT TIME" OF MONTH?

By MARTHA LEE

THE PROPER ATTITUDE is the important thing in making interesting menus of left-overs. One should think of them as opportunities to prepare certain unusual recipes that have been discovered, and when bringing them to the table give them the benefit of a proud entrance.

Also, left-overs should not be served the day after they are left, but should be kept fresh in the refrigerator until at least the second and perhaps the third day.

4 tbsp. butter
1 medium onion, minced
½ cup finely chopped celery
1½ cups diced cooked pork
1 tbsp. flour
½ cup milk or water
1 large (24 oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Grated American cheese

Melt butter in frying pan, add minced onion and chopped celery. Cook until tender, then add cooked pork. Sprinkle with flour and brown well. Add milk or water and cook until thickened stirring constantly. Add spaghetti, salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Cook until spaghetti is thoroughly heated. Just before serving sprinkle with grated American cheese. Makes 6 servings.

BARBECUED LAMB

12 thin slices cold roast lamb
2 tbsp. butter
1 tbsp. cider vinegar
¾ cup currant jelly
¼ tsp. prepared mustard
Salt

Reheat lamb in sauce made by melting butter and adding vinegar, currant jelly, mustard and salt to taste.

LAMB EN CASSEROLE

2 cups cold cooked lamb
1 large can spaghetti
½ cup tomato ketchup
½ cup water

Put cold lamb through meat chopper. Put a layer of minced lamb into a casserole, then a layer of spaghetti and repeat until all ingredients have been used. Add ketchup and water and cook in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for 30 minutes.

LEFT-OVER MEAT AND TOMATO SAUCE

2 tbsp. fat
6 medium size onions, thinly sliced
2 cups cream of tomato soup
2½ tsp. celery salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. salt
2 cups cold cooked beef or veal, cut in small pieces, or an equal amount of cold sliced meat

Melt the fat in a frying pan, add the onion and cook over a low flame until slightly brown, stirring frequently. Add the soup and seasonings and cook seven until onions are tender, about one half hour. Add the cold cooked meat. Heat thoroughly and serve.

Stunt Girl

By Clifford D. Clevenger

JENNY KERRIGAN greeted me with a kiss when I untangled my feet from the pedals of my car and climbed out at the Rancho Rio. "It's wonderful to see you again, Uncle Jim!" she cried.

She always calls me uncle even though we're no kin, for I'd ridden with her father all the years when she was a kid. But she hurried on excitedly, not giving me a chance to answer.

"Ken's making a western movie, Uncle, a quickie," and I could see she was worried.

"So rodeo riding ain't risky enough for the young pup," I growled.

"It's not that," Jenny defended her husband. "The studios wouldn't give him leading parts so he's making his own."

But Ken Kerrigan interrupted us then. He was young and lean and slim-hipped, a born rider. Any fool could see that. He gripped my hand, and I could feel the strength that had given him new records at Cheyenne. "How are you, Uncle Jim?"

I'm stiff from riding in this contraption," and I nodded toward the car, "but I can still sit a horse with the best of them."

"We can use you," Ken declared. "We need riders to swell our mob scenes." He turned to Jenny. "That stunt girl phoned yet?" and I could see he was worried, too.

"She'll get here in time," Jenny tried to assure him, but her statement lacked conviction. I'd only seen Jenny a few times since she'd gone to Chicago to live with an aunt after the death of her father 10 years ago. She'd met Kerrigan there last fall when he was riding in the Rodeo at the Stadium and had married him soon after.

A CAUTIOUS WIFE

But Kerrigan gave me no time to talk with Jenny. He hurried me away to the corrals and introduced me to his riders. "This is Jim Shepherd, boys. He was riding at Cheyenne years ago."

"I remember you," one who was older than the others said. "My name's Buck Burrows. I saw you ride when I was a kid." We shook hands and he went on. "Maybe you can settle an argument we been havin', Mr. Shepherd. Some of us claim Texas Smith was the greatest rider of all time."

"He gets my vote. I declared earnestly.

"I've heard old-timers say Texas had a kid who could outride him," one of the boys cut in.

"Whatever became of the kid?" another asked.

"What do you think about that, Mr. Shepherd?"

I glanced at Kerrigan, but he seemed not to notice. "No one could outride Texas Smith," was my opinion.

Jenny called to Ken from the ranch house, and he rode toward her. "The stunt girl just phoned, Ken. She'll be here in half an hour." A sense of relief seemed to go through the group, and then Jenny was talking again in a lower tone, but still audible. "Please be careful today, Ken, won't you?"

Kerrigan answered under his breath, whirled his horse, and galloped past us. Jenny seemed to shrink as she turned slowly back to the house. A girl in riding suit and sombrero jumped her horse over the corral gate and fell into pace beside Kerrigan.

"That's our leading lady, Shirley Wayne," Buck Burrows said, as we followed. "She's making a big play for Kerrigan." I looked my surprise. "You saw what just happened back at the house. No man likes to be babied in public by his wife. Can't understand Mrs Kerrigan. She was sure raised on a ranch, but she's scared p.umb to death of horses and riding. Must be terrible to have a husband who does so much of it."

"Why is this stunt girl so important?" I asked.

THE STORM HEARD

"The whole picture hinges on her," Buck explained. "She jumps her horse over a step bank into this stream, swims it, and starts up the other side. She's shot, falls off her horse, and is swept down to where Kerrigan rescues her. It's a tough job, and plenty of them turned it down, so Kerrigan finally hired the best stunt girl in Hollywood to do it. But she broke her arm in her last picture and is laid up for weeks. He got another one promised, but she hasn't showed up yet."

"Can he wait till the first girl's arm heals?"

Buck shook his head. "Kerrigan spent his last dollar building a dirt dam so he would have enough water to make this stream a torrent. If we get the heavy rain which is predicted his dam will wash out and he'll be broke."

I looked at the low bank of clouds in the west and shook my head. "Why don't this Wayne gal have a try at it?"

"She ain't sticking her pretty neck out for no one."

"Couldn't a man double in the part?"

"Cameras will be too close for that."

We rounded some hills and were on location. Cameras were set up along the stream bed. There was hardly a trickle of water in it now, but men were waiting at the dirt dam to knock timbers out of the sluice gates.

We riders spent an hour rehearsing some scenes and then came back to where Kerrigan paced nervously. He looked at the clouds rolling high in the west and called to me. "How long before it breaks Uncle Jim"

"Thirty minutes at the most." I told him.

Kerrigan hurried over to Shirley Wayne, talked to her in a low tone She shook her head. He turned away angrily.

The head camera man spoke into his loud speaker. "Just time to shoot the scene before the storm breaks."

The Cast of Characters in "Stunt Girl"

KERRIGAN, who stakes his all on a movie, but faces financial disaster when the stunt girl fails to appear.

MRS. KERRIGAN, who seems to fear riding.

UNCLE JIM.

The stunt girl had not arrived and we all knew Kerrigan was broke.

"Don't blame any gal for backin' out of this," Buck said at my elbow. "It would've taken some mighty fancy ridin'."

Then someone shouted, and we turned to see a rider, dressed just like Shirley Wayne, gallop into view around the hills hiding the ranch house.

Kerrigan leaped for the loud speaker. "Stop here you are!" he shouted. The girl reined in her horse. "There's no time to rehearse!" he explained, and gave her a short description of the action. The girl waved her hat.

But the head camera man protested "She can't do the scene without rehearsing!"

"She'll have to!" Kerrigan cried and raced for his position downstream. The sluice gates were opened. The camera man watched the water, the clouds boiling in the west, jumped to the loud speaker "Camera! Action!" he bawled "All right lady! Give it everything you've got!"

The girl galloped her horse toward us. She could ride all right She put him into the bank fifty feet short of the spot where he was to go over. Buck gasped and almost squeezed my arm off. But the bank was too steep, the horse reared and veered away, and then I saw the girl had done it on purpose. It was marvelous camera stuff

MRS. KERRIGAN!

But six jumps further, at the right spot, she booted him over Actually, she just about picked him up and threw him over. The horse squealed as they hit the water, but was up in a moment swimming She headed him across the raging current, and they scrambled up the other bank. Half way up the shot roared.

The girl tumbled off, rolled down into the stream. The current carried her along, one arm and her head above water.

Kerrigan settled his noose over her, and with his horse pulling the rope upstream, waded in. He seemed frantic when he reached her, fought his way back, and carried her up the steep bank to the covered truck

Big drops of rain pelted us as we raced after him When I got there Buck Burrows was hollering. "It's Mrs. Kerrigan! It's his wife done it."

Kerrigan jumped down to the ground. The Wayne girl started toward him, but he stopped her with a look. "J-Jenny's all right," he gasped in relief. "J-just had her wind knocked out." He turned to me. "I-I can't understand it, Jim. She was always so scared of riding and stunts."

I looked away toward the hills. The mist seemed to blot them out, or maybe it was the mist in my own eyes. So Jenny hadn't told him. "She seen her father killed trick riding when she was just a kid in pigtails," I explained

Kerrigan gripped my arm. "Who - who was her father, Jim?"

I removed my hat and spoke softly as one should in reverence to the memory of the greatest rider of all time

"Texas Smith," I said

MONEY TO LOAN

LOANS
AT REDUCED RATES

Reduced rates cut payments on all loans over $100

You can get a personal loan of $20 to $300 at Household Finance at rates substantially below the lawful maximum—if you can repay in small monthly installments.

Payments to fit your purse

You may choose the most convenient repayment plan from the table below. Suppose that you need $100 and you can readily repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

See the sample loans and payment plans in the table. (Loans also made in other amounts and for other periods.) Payments in the table repay everything. Household's rate of 2½% per month has long been below the lawful maximum. Now a new reduction has cut Household's rate to 2% per month on that part of your loan in excess of $100.

Simple to borrow

We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. And you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the papers with you.

AUSTEN LAKE

Four Bad Saturdays Ahead for H. C.

WORCESTER, Sept. 10—It's double drill and no canteen for Holy Cross' freshly barbered hopefuls this fall. For Joe Sheeketski (Shu-ket-skih) learned a painful lesson last year when he let his complacent seniors dawdle the season away. They lost two ball games and that's calamity at Holy Cross.

AUSTEN LAKE

So Joe (there are swells and bulges on his person where a year ago there were flats and hollows) has posted a standing order on the varsity bulletin board, "Helmets, pads and thigh plates every day for the linemen." That means scrimmage, hard, bone-bruising contact work all fall.

"I quake," said Joe, similating a shudder, "when I think of it. Suppose I lost Joe Osmanski, or Leo Brennan or John Kellar?" He sighed, lifting his palms skyward in a supplicating gesture, "Gotta take the chance."

His guards are gone, his ends are wiped out, a tackle is missing, his center is green. It sounded like General Joffre's famed war communique in the first battle of the Marne. ("My flanks are turned. My center is driven back. I am about to attack").

Tom Sullivan, a chunky halfback who must fill the capacious triple threat shoes left vacant by the passing of Ronnie Cahill, was lifting tall spirals down Packachuag's wind-swept field. "That's Joe Osmanski," indicated Sheeketski, as a tall, loose-actioned lad gathered in the leather egg and sprinted up field. Joe, brother of the redoubtable Bill, is a long striding lad of six feet. He doesn't run with his chest cuddled against his knees as Bill did. He doesn't pirouette and fishtail like balding Will did. But—"He learns quicker," mused Joe, "Bill was at his peak as a Sophomore. But Joe won't really arrive at his best for several years after he leaves college. The pro team that picks him up next year'll have something."

Far away, on the crown of the hill, a youth built like the back of a taxicab was yipping signals to a skeleton crew "Thurty-nigh-yua . . . Tuh-wel-vuh . . . Aye-teeen! . . . Hip!" he bawled as the backs dance-stepped from the famed Rockne "box" formation. "Frank Saba," said Joe, with a note of thanksgiving in his voice, and reciting as though from a mail order catalogue, "Good play picker, good blocker, good punt catcher strictly offensive minded. I spend a lotta time with him."

Revives Memories of Rockne

Reminds one of how Knute Rockne, the "Shek's" old tutor at Notre Dame, used to father his quarterbacks, taking them to live in his household and burning the midnight oil the year round with conversational lectures until they were letter perfect in his lore and their brains were miniature sets of Rockne's brains. "Rock never conceded," said Joe wistfully, "that with the type of teams Notre Dame met and the kind of men he played, they had any right to expect his plans to be interfered with."

A couple of well-built kids, their shoulders deformed by quilted pads, were horsing each other nearby. "Coupla sophomore ends," said Joe. "Ed Murphy and Walter Roberts—Jeepers! NO! NO! . . . this way." And Joe, himself an old blocking master, straddled out, monkey fashion, meshing his knee under Roberts' pelvic arch and churning with his feet. "That's the four point block," he explained, panting.

"Goodness me," said Joe, tapping himself in a cruciform, "What'll I ever do if they don't develop. Dig down and grab something out of the bag, I guess." There was another lad named John Melody, who played a minute of the Brown game and another named Dick Hamilton, who played basketball. "I dunno," said Joe. "I've been mixing 'em up like a puppy's breakfast. Dick was a center last year."

Centers, according to the Notre Dame pattern, are the mental marvels of a team—a combination calculating machine, circus acrobat, clairvoyant and human time-table. For Sheeketski's centers are expected to cut down the opposing fullbacks, go down under punts, carry a full set of signals in their skulls, fillip the ball unerringly, and then, on defense fall back and diagnose opposing plays, cover forward passes and reenforce the line. "Paul Dorrington has the job just now," said Joe, indicating a rugged six footer with a cherubic, apple-cheeked expression, "Got a face like a choir boy but he's plenty rough."

A thick-bodied lad with a keg-like torso and hitching-post legs walked by, a belligerent waggle to his hips and a monumental neck. "Frank Gaziano," said Joe, "A guard. I've sacrificed some speed to power there." Curiously Gaz[illegible] built like one of Paul Bowser's

LAKE AT DARTMOUTH TOMORROW

Austen Lake, New England's foremost football writer and ace columnist for the Boston Evening American, will tell you all about the 1940 Dartmouth football eleven in an article that will be published in this newspaper tomorrow. Bill Jones, crack cameraman, made the trip to Hanover, N. H., with Lake, and he will give the picture story of what the Indians are doing on the gridiron.

BOB GROVE HUNTS TIGERS

Feller Hurls Against Yanks

The Tiger is a vicious beast and an Indian can perform a tasty scalp operation with a tomahawk, but Frank Buck and Buffalo Bill proved that both can be taken with the proper strategy, and strategy is exactly what the Red Sox and Yankees are relying on today as they open their final drive for the 1940 pennant in the west.

The Red Sox strategy consists of throwing Lefty Grove into the Tigers' den. The hard-bitten left hander from Lanonconing is poison to Tigers as he has proven time and again through the umpteen years he has been hurling horsehide in the American League.

FACE BUCK NEWSOM

Head Tiger Del Baker has no intentions of having his group jumping through the hoops for the amusement of Joe Cronin and company, however, and has entrusted Buck Newsom with the task of seeing that quite the contrary happens.

Encouraged by the fact that Cleveland lost yesterday's game, thus bringing them a half-game nearer Excelsior, the Sox are prepared to shoot the works this week during what is certainly their last chance for the title.

But the club they are facing was equally buoyed by yesterday's Chicago win as it meant undisputed possession of the top spot in the league.

At Cleveland, Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees is pinning his faith in young Bonham to pin the first fall on a fading but still dangerous pack of Indians.

Desperate over the plight of his club, Oscar Vitt, or whoever has the say on that ball club now, is calling on Bob Feller, who is doing every thing but sell peanuts at the park these days, to halt the Yankee surge.

Pennant Races At a Glance

By Associated Press

The Cleveland Indians slipped quietly out the back way and left the Detroit Tigers in possession of the American Leaegue lead by half a game.

While all the other teams in the junior circuit were idle, the Chicago White Sox stifled the Indians 2-1 on four-bit pitching by Lefty Thornton Lee.

There was only one game in the National League also, the New York Giants beating the Brooklyn Dodgers 7-4

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Club	W	L	Pct	GB	To Play

Cleveland	76	57	.571	½	21
New York	75	57	.568	1	23

That should be a honey of a pitching duel. Bonham has won his last four starts and all of them the hard way. The Yankee bats have been silent during his turns on the mound and it has been nothing but his gilt-edged hurling which has turned the trick for the young men of Manhattan.

Feller, of course, is Cleveland. His tremendous talent has kept the Indians up there all year and their slump came when Bobby suffered a let down.

LOSS WOULD HURT

Now with the loss of the championship which they had in the palm of their hands two weeks ago, staring them, the Indians are hoping that the fastest of all the Fellers can regain his peak form against the World Champions.

A win for the Sox and Yankees today will bring the Sox within four games of the roof which will be occupied by the New Yorkers and Detroiters, with Cleveland a half game behind.

Cleveland and Detroit wins will mean that they are still a half-game apart, with the Yankees two

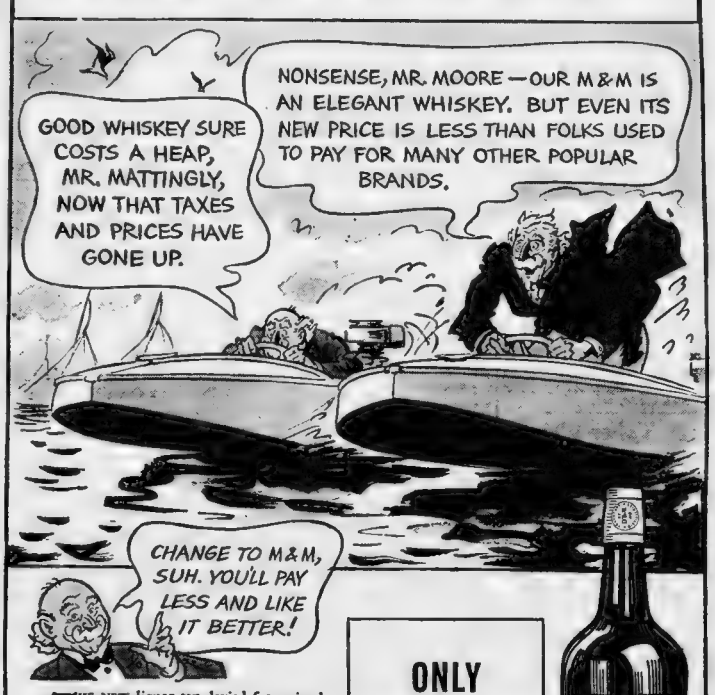
How to pay the new liquor tax and save it, too!



GOOD WHISKEY SURE COSTS A HEAP, MR. MATTINGLY, NOW THAT TAXES AND PRICES HAVE GONE UP.
NONSENSE, MR. MOORE—OUR M&M IS AN ELEGANT WHISKEY. BUT EVEN ITS NEW PRICE IS LESS THAN FOLKS USED TO PAY FOR MANY OTHER POPULAR BRANDS.
CHANGE TO M&M, SUH. YOU'LL PAY LESS AND LIKE IT BETTER!

THE NEW liquor tax, levied for national defense, is a good tax. Pay it gladly. But don't let your whiskey budget out a notch—it's unnecessary. Simply switch to M&M—the mild, pleasant whiskey that costs you less, saves you the tax while you pay it. Today's M&M is, in fact, milder and better-tasting than ever before—satin-smooth. Try it.

It's Double Drill for Holy Cross Gridsters

ALL-SCHOLASTIC from Chelsea, Johnny Grigas, 6 feet, 205 pounds, is headed for a starting role on the 1940 football edition of Holy Cross. John was a star fullback on last year's freshman eleven and is one of the fastest ball carriers on the Purple squad.

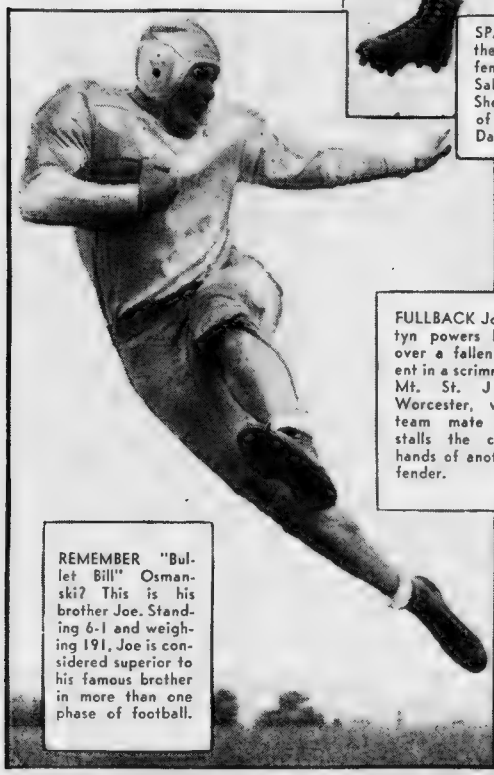
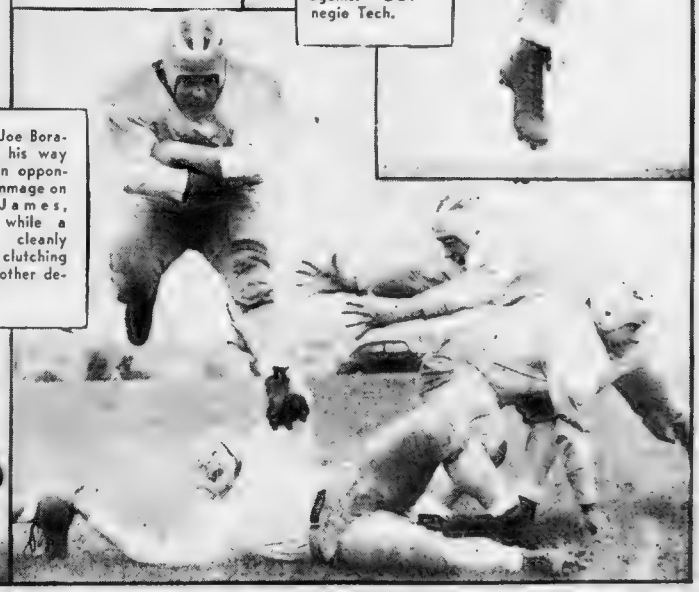
UNDERSTUDY to the great Ronnie Cahill last year, Tom Sullivan is now filling the shoes of that ace pacer and kicker. He played his best game against Carnegie Tech.



REMEMBER "Bullet Bill" Osmanski? This is his brother Joe. Standing 6-1 and weighing 191, Joe is considered superior to his famous brother in more than one phase of football.



FULLBACK Joe Boratyn powers his way over a fallen opponent in a scrimmage on Mt. St. James, Worcester, while a team mate cleanly stalls the clutching hands of another defender.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

BACK FROM A vacation on the South Shore and Cape Cod, I find that George Wiswell has dropped the football season right into our midst with his annual offering between George Marshall's Washington Redskins and the Eastern College All-Stars at Fenway Park tonight.

VITO ANANIS

That is always the way with the football season. Just when everybody is steamed up over baseball pennant races, tuna fishing, golf and what not, George Wiswell and other enterprising promoters send sturdy football teams into action and people rush to see the latest athletic offerings. After a brief stay of less than three months, football will be brushed aside and hockey and the other Winter sports will come in for their own.

It is just as well that the football season is short. It places a great strain on the young men who play the game as well as on the hysterical thousands who watch the contests.

The professional elevens have been smart enough to capitalize the new popularity of football which explains the charity games staged each year in Chicago, New York and Boston. These games draw such large crowds that a substantial profit is left after the expenses of the rival clubs and ball park rental are paid. Teams like the Redskins, Giants and Green Bay Packers have found these early season contests helpful to paying their training expenses as well as furnishing competition for their squads.

At this stage of the season College All-Stars have a chance to win from professional clubs. This was proved in New York when the College All-Stars upset the Giants by a score of 16 to 7. In Chicago, the Green Bay Packers disposed of the All-Stars by a count of 42 to 28 in one of the most thrilling games ever played in the Mid-West.

"Swede" Nelson Has Powerful Eleven

NILS "SWEDE" NELSON is coach of the Eastern All-Stars who will oppose the Redskins. Nelson has shown exceptional ability in organizing All-Star elevens, and you may be assured that the club that he will send against the Redskins will give a good account of itself.

Captain Vito Ananis, former Boston College star, will be supported by Bill Hutchinson, Dartmouth; Bill Tranavitch, Rutgers, Ed Boell, New York University, and other former college gridiron greats.

The Redskins will send their strongest possible eleven into action, as they are anxious to score an impressive victory.

The clash between the All-Stars and the Redskins will once more start talk of a professional football franchise for Boston There is a fortune for the promoter who can get the rights for a professional football team in Boston.

When the Redskins were making their home here, they drew large crowds during those periods when they played well. If George Marshall had kept his club here instead of transferring it to Washington, it would have clicked for him financially.

Pittsburgh would be willing to shift its franchise to Boston if assured proper support, according to Art Rooney, owner of Pittsburgh.

Sheldon Fairbanks has been showing interest in professional football, and is likely to bob into the picture one of these days with a franchise that will enable him to show the better clubs in the country.

College Players Embrace Professional Game

THE COLLEGE players have embraced professional football, and now eagerly seek berths on the big elevens. In the early days of professional football, most of the heroes of the college campus refused to sign contracts with professional clubs. The professionals had to turn to the stars of the minor colleges and to second and third string players.

Professional football has established itself on a firm foundation and it no longer has any difficulties geting the desired material. A player now gains as much prestige, and often more money, playing professional football than he does coaching a college eleven.

Professional sports have made marked progress. One does not lose social standing because he earns his living as a professional football player, boxer, golfer or tennis player.

Gene Tunney proved that with a background as a professional boxer it was possible to crash high society and to marry the heiress to $25,000,000. Tunney at the time was worth a million dollars in his own right, and since then has increased his wealth.

East All-Stars Battle Redskins As Football Makes Bow Here

The football lid will pop off in Boston tonight when the Washington Redskins clash with the Eastern All-Stars under the lights at Fenway Park in a game that will be staged by the Cross-cup-Pishon Post of the American Legion.

In the event of rain, the game will go over until tomorrow night. The rival elevens are hopeful of getting satisfactory playing conditions.

RUBBER GAME

Redskins and All-Stars engaged in fiery workouts at Fenway Park In the practice sessions the two elevens devoted most of their attention to the open type of warfare. It is expected that the fans will witness brilliant forward passing attacks tonight

Last year the Redskins won from the All-Stars by a score of 30 to 27. The college heroes are determined to gain revenge tonight

All-Star teams have secured an even break in their clashes with the professionals this season. At Chicago the Green Bay Packers won from the College All-Stars, 42 to 28, but in New York the All-Stars turned back the Giants, 16 to 7.

There is intense interest in the meeting between the Redskins and the All-Stars, and it is expected that there will be a large and enthusiastic crowd on hand when the two elevens go into action

FARKAS LOST TO SKINS

George Marshall's team lost the services of their ace ball carrier, Handy Andy Farkas, just before coming to the Hub. Andy, who started here with the University of Detroit in undergraduate days, and with the 'Skins last season, will be out for most of this season. He injured his left knee, and must undergo an operation.

Swede Nelson has made a few last minute shifts in his starting lineup. He has decided to hold Ronnie Cahill in reserve.

Ed Boll of N. Y. U. will take over the passing assignment in the opening backfield and will have Bombshell Bill Hutchinson of Dartmouth, Bill Tranavitch of Rutgers and Capt. Vito Ananis as his mates

PROTEST SCHWOTZER

Nelson will toss Cahill and Lloyd Ickes of Penn State into the fray when he wants to put on the passing pressure. Swede Gustafson of Pennsylvania and Dick Harrison of B. C. will also go in when the two brilliant passers take over. Both Harrison and Gustafson are noted for their ability to grab passes

A last minute protest may rob Ernie Schwotzer, 1939 Boston College leader, of his chance to perform in the Stars' regimentals. The Philadelphia Eagles, whose property Schwotzer is, wired a protest. They do not want Ernie to play against the Redskins.

An elaborate program aside from the football game has been arranged and will get underway at 7:30 when the leading professional and amateur golfers of New England engage in a hole-in-one contest

The kick-off for the game is slated for 8:30 p. m

INDIAN ON FENS WARPATH—Bomber Bill Hutchinson, last year's great Dartmouth back, rockets back into the local football scene tonight at Fenway when he gallops for Swede Nelson's All-Stars against the Washington Redskins, pro league standouts. The Chicago and New York All-Star pro games have furnished spectacular football this year, and tonight's game is expected to be best of the three.

BEES PLAY REDS TWO AT HIVE

By BILL GRIMES

After a none too successful Eastern trip, the Bees will open a three game series against the Cincinnati Reds with a double header this afternoon at National League Field.

"Deacon" Bill McKechnie and his Reds arrived in town late yesterday afternoon. Although his charges are seven games out in front of Leo Durocher's Dodgers, the "Deacon" still refuses to make any predictions as to the winner of the 1940 National League pennant

"Sure, we are seven games out in front of the Dodgers. But have you looked over the schedule, from here in?

"When we come off this Eastern trip, we'll wind up the season with Pittsburgh and St. Louis. Pirates and the Cards are battling for second place. Neither club can afford to ease up. The World Series cut for second place is approximately $1100 and each player on the third place club will receive about $750.

SCHEDULE FAVORS DODGERS

"Now, the present day ball player has the greatest respect for $350. So, the Pirates and Cards will be bearing down against us, during the final series of the season.

"The Dodgers have a much easier schedule from here to the wire than we have. Of course, they must play the four Western clubs, starting today with a double header with the Cubs. But, when we mid-Westerners start back home, the Brooks remain in Ebbets Field playing the Phillies and the Giants for three days and then they'll entertain your Bees for a couple of days, after which they'll step over to Philadelphia for the last two days of the season.

"Now, don't get me wrong. The Bees are capable of making trouble for any club in the National League. But, the Phillies and the Giants have been "cousins" to Durocher's hirelings all season, yesterday's upset notwithstanding."

Apparently, "Deacon" McKechnie rates the Bees as worthy of serious consideration. He announced that "Bucky" Walters and Johnny Van Der Meer would be on the points for the Reds this afternoon.

WALTERS AFTER 19TH WIN

Walters will be seeking his 19th victory of the season. "Bucky got off to a fine start but he hasn't been so effective of late and the fans are wondering if he is stale.

Van Der Meer spent the season in the American Association. He was recently recalled from Indianapolis and since his return he has chalked up a victory over the Pirates.

"We had a tough trip," admitted Manager Casey Stengl. "We ran into some good pitching and lost four out of six games. In my opinion, some of the boys are tired. They are only kids and the strain is getting them.

"However, now that they are back home, I believe that they'll start clicking and we'll make it very interesting for the Western clubs. We haven't been hitting, otherwise we'd have taken both the Giant and Phillies series.

"I'm going to send Manny Salvo and Nick Strincevich against the Reds this afternoon. And, if they are in form, we swing back into the games won column.

After tomorrow's single game with the Reds, the Bees will take on the Cardinals starting with a a double header on Thursday and on Sunday they'll play their fourth twin bill of the week against the Chicago Cubs.

Salem's Starting Lineup Remains Mystery---Even to Coach Broderick

By SAM BROGNA

Coach Bill Broderick of Salem High, not only is aging fast enough by time alone but is being helped along very rapidly by one worry after another. Of course, worrying is the one and only problem with any football coach but with Bill, it's something that seems to have come with a resounding thud within the past four years and has stuck—or so it seems.

If it isn't a football player leaving school to elope and shattering the hopes of a championship eleven or his having trouble with one of his assistant coaches who seem to be a little dissatisfied with the setting, it's rebuilding a new eleven which has been stripped clean by graduation—with the exception of the two co-captains.

Last year, it was Charlie Reed who threw a monkey wrench into the well laid championship plans of Coach Broderick by whipping off to New Hampshire with his best girl whom he made his bride; the year before as well as the preceding year, Salem experienced its worst two gridiron seasons since Bill Broderick took over the job back in 1923.

IRONS OUT ASSIST. PROBLEM

This year, after his team enjoyed a rather fair season last fall despite the absence of a player who would have probably played an important role in bringing the State title to Salem, Bill once again is harassed with practically the same problem.

He straightened out Marty Donovan's problem last week and the assistant coach who was a holdout for about two weeks, reported Friday for the first time and once again harmony rules the ranks. But, Bill doesn't know just where he stands in regards to this year's outlook since he has been forced to start from scratch.

After the June roll call, he had only Don Williams, a tackle and Dick Anderson, back, co-captains, as a nucleus. This is very odd out in Salem but there was nothing he could do about it.

He issued one of the first schoolboy calls a little past the midway mark of August, taking 30 hand picked boys to his camp in Boxford. He worked them for a little over a week and then returned to Salem where he is trying everything under the sun to uncover some talent to mould a team with that would withstand the gruelling grid schedule which is but four days away.

ANDERSON A FIXTURE

With Anderson a fixture in the backfield, at the quarterback post, Bill is working "Harpo" Monahan, Harry Frazier and Bill O'Brien in the other berths. With the exception of O'Brien who tips the scales at an even 200, the other boys are small, light and fast.

Anderson is being used as the blocking back as well as runningthe team on the field, O'Brien will use his excessive weight to good advantage it is hoped by adding that much needed yard or two for the first down with a line plunge, and Frazier and Monahan are expected to carry the mail.

Other prospects who are expected to be in there quite frequently if they don't get a regular job are Harry Jackson, a colored flash, and Sam Whitmore, a passer.

SAW LITTLE SERVICE

As linemen, Broderick has working together for the opening clash with Newburyport High this Saturday afternoon Walter Mroz and Adrian Oulette, guards, Harry Sultzbach and Don Williams, tackles and Sebastian Spinale and John Ingemi on the wings. All these fellows earned letters last year although they didn't see a great deal of service. At center, will be Walter Mielcarz, a junior who is out for the first time.

This lineup isn't definite and may have a few new faces when the Witches open the season this weekend.

Coach Bill Broderick's crew will also play the first night football game in the history of Salem sports this fall. The date is with Lynn English at Lynn Friday night, Sept. 27.

"This is more or less an experience," sang Joe Smith, faculty manager.

AMATEURS BATTLE IN RAIN

BULLETIN

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—It was damp again today as the National Amateur Golf Championship went into its second 18-hole qualifying round over the west course of the winged foot golf club.

The skies were grey and heavy, their fairways thick with dew before more than nine threesomes had set off in pursuit of the first-round leaders it had started to rain in earnest.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10 A(P)—Maurice "Hay Fever" McCarthy, who has been giving a good account of himself in high caliber golf since 1927, did so again when he paced the first 18-hole qualifying round for the National Amateur Golf championship with a two-under-par 70.

This, over a Winged Foot G. C. West course which was playing long and proving difficult for some of this country's finest Simonpures, was a sterling performance. But even so it gave the Cincinnatian only a one-stroke margin over his closest pursuers.

MORE DARK HORST

Actually he was the pursuer, since he came in last of the pacesetters. Bracketed behind him at 71 when the day's work was done were Dick Chapman, who croons occasionally and hits good golf shots consistently; Jack Cree, a blond, husky 24-year-old from upstate New York, and Tom Whiteway of Cleveland.

That Chapman should be up and in the running was no surprise. Winged Foot virtually its Dick's backyard. But Cree and Whiteway were considerable surprises.

Cree, medalist in the sectional qualifying round, was playing in the tournament for the first time. Son of Buddie Cree, one-time Yankee outfielder, he clipped two strokes off the front nine's par with a 34, and then held on well enough for a 37 coming home. Chapman played it the same way, while Whiteway was out in 35 and came back in par 36.

LED BOBBY JONES IN 1927

McCarthy, who had Bobby Jones 1 down with 3 to go in the first round in 1927, didn't start out sensationally, but he staged a whirlwind finish.

Behind him and the three 71 shooters the brackets began getting crowded. Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, defending champion and favorite, found a lot of good company at par—72, including such contenders as trailer Bill Holt of Syracuse, Skip Alexander of Duke, Freddie Haas of New Orleans and the hard-hitting veteran Ellis Knowles, who was a semifinalist in this tournament in 1906 and won the intercollegiate title for Yale in 1907.

Red Sox Deny Price Rise

In answer to a recent charge by City Councilor Joseph Gottlieb that Fenway Park seats sell for $1.10 week days but are sold for $1.40 Sundays the Red Sox management informed the Council through Mayor Tobin yesterday that all seats were the same price weekdays and Sundays. The management explained that holders of $1.10 tickets were permitted to take any unoccupied $1.40 seat during week days but added that the $1.40 seats usually sold out on Sundays.

1000-Yard Rifle Title at Stake

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 10 (AP)—The long range .30 caliber rifle championship of America was up for decision today at the national matches.

A total of 1493 of the country's top-flight marksmen entered a 20-shot 1000 yard event for the Wimbledon cup, placed in competition in 1875 by Princess Louise of England. The event, won a year ago by Pvt. Alfred L. Wolters of the Marines with a perfect score, is open to any rifle, but the majority of the field used the army Springfield

Another test for the Army's new Garand (M-1) semi-automatic rifle was on today's program. A field of 1465 entered the Scott trophy event, 20 shots rapid fire prone, at 300 yards with the Springfield bolt action rifle, while 1012 competed in a 10-shot event over the same course with the new arm.

Yesterday 34 marksmen scored perfect 50's with the Springfield in a 10-shot rapid fire event at 200 yards, while only one had a perfect score over the same distance in a 10-shot Garand match.

The perfect score among the 1057 M-1 marksmen was turned in by C. L. Sweet of Spark, Nev., while the 34 leaders among the 1502 Springfield riflemen were to shoot off today to determine the winner.

Sox Buy Three More Players

Ed Doherty, publicity director of the Red Sox, announced last night that three players were purchased from the Louisville club, all to report for spring training next year.

The deal, which was for an unannounced sum of cash and players to be named later, will bring the following players to Boston: C. C. (Tex) Hughson, 24, pitcher who won 5 and lost 10 with Louisville this season: Norman Brown, 21, pitcher, who won 11, including a no-hit, no-run game, and lost 5 for Rocky Mount while out on option from Louisville; and Albert Flair, 23, first baseman, who batted .313 for Scranton while also out on option.

Riggs Loses; Alice Wins

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Blonde Don McNeil, who didn't know he was beaten, is the new nation singles tennis champion.

The Oklahoma City sensation, 22 years old, who already holds the National Clay Courts championship and the intercollegiate title, pounded his way to a popular victory over Defending Champion Bobby Riggs, before a gallery of 7500 at Forest Hills.

Down two sets and with his opponent's game apparently at its peak—as is customary when the chips are down—Don made as gallant a comeback as any sport could wish and the championship crown will fit snugly on his tough blond head.

He threw caution to the winds, made Bobby play as he wished him to and finally triumphed, 4—6, 6—8, 6—3, 6—3, 7—5, in a match that may not have contained great tennis, but packed more than its share of drama.

That big boxing state to line up with the N. B. A. this week may be Pennsylvania, according to the Associated Press . . . If Seattle's Bud Ward wins the amateur golf title, he'll be the seventh fellow to do it twice running . . . Tufts Captain House-Hunts As Work Opens

Twenty-four candidates reported for the first practice at Tufts College, and Coach Lew Manly put them through a stiff scrimmage with the dummies when they were driven indoors by the steady drizzle.

Most of the standbys have reported, but Capt. Jack West was absent, apartment hunting for his bride. He was expected to show up today. Bob Bissette, a back, is the only other experienced player missing.

3 TACKLES INELIGIBLE

The tackle berths are giving Coach Manly some real headaches, for all three of his prospects are ineligible until late in the season. Meanwhile, Nick Bournazos, who played center last year, has been shifted to tackle, for Richardson of last year's freshmen is a find at center. George Mernick is being tried at the other tack'e berth, with Pitman and Beckvold as possible alternates.

In spite of the loss of Howard Redgate, outstanding freshman athlete last season, the end berths will be well taken care of by Humphrey Hosmer and Mark Hanaburg, both veterans, with Walsh and Donovan for relief.

PLENTY OF BACKS

Burch Lorrette and Bill Fogarty will handle the guard berths, spelled by Paul Raulson, a sophomore.

Backs are plentiful, with six veterans, and several sophomores showing promise. Harrison, Kenny, Rptter, Manly, Patterson and Curtis are among the veterans, with Moschella and Watkins coming up. Capt. West will act as blocking back.

Diamond Gems

Manager Fred Haney of those pesky St. Louis Browns was born in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in 1899 and started his pro ball career in the Pacific Coast League at the tender age of 19 . . . played in the Detroit and Red Sox infields for six years but spent most of his 20 active seasons in the American Association and Pacific Coast Leagues . . . managed Toledo in '36, '37, '38, and the Browns the last two years . . . the Browns are going nowhere this season but they're having a great time annoying the pennant contenders.

wrestlers, is a prime scholar, debater and mingler in most of the college's extra-curricular affairs. "He'll team with Joe Zeno," added Joe, "An aggressive tackle made into a conservative guard." (An epic in understatement—for I've never seen a "conservative" Holy Cross guard.)

Toys With Laterals and Spinners

Like all graduates of the Rockne system Sheeketski has tinkered with and changed it until it is less like the original Notre Dame stuff than a smidgeon and a smatter of other men's methods, including some of his own innovations. Like Rockne, who in his day was quick to seize on other people's inventions and brighten them up with new flourishes, turning them ultimately out as his own weapons, Joe toys with the lateral pase and the varieties of spinners.

The first is a play which Andy Kerr of Colgate found, neglected and left mouldering in the football attic some years ago and modernized by having his lads slide the ball backwards like hot pie plates an instant before being tackled, thus keeping the action scooting off at new tangents. And the spinner is a little pirouette with the ball hugged in the hunched-over pit of a player's stomach and ending with a delayed dart through one spot or another.

"Tackles!" pondered Joe with his eyes roving over the rooftops below the hill where the Industrial city tumbled away in folds like wrinkles on a fat man's stomach. "Johnny Kellar, th' captain, 'n Leo Brennan, a last year's sub." And sometimes at night when all the rest of Worcester is buried in slumber, he has sudden bed sweats thinking what to do if one or t'ther comes down with a sprain, a pulled ligament, or a creaky knee. "There's no depth," he vouchsafed, referring to lack of suitable subs. "I have a likely lad named John Fitzgerald to spell Kellar, but nobody to understudy Brennan."

Sheeketski, affable and honest, admitted that last year—his first as head coach, taught him a lesson. For, where he had allowed his upper classmen to loll through the season and neglected the heavy duty contact work of tackling and blocking, this year he would put them through hard, body-bruising drills, and risk the danger of injuries. "Gil Dobie once said, 'You can't win this year's football games on last year's sweat,'" quoted Joe, "I learned that."

Offensively H. C. looks sound. Joe Osmanski (magic name) is at one halfback position, Tom Sullivan at the other, Joe Boratyn (had infected teeth and a pulled shoulder muscle last year) at fullback and Frank (the Brain) Saba at quarter. "We won't huddle this year," observed Joe, recollecting that the only two games last season in which he had used the conference system of picking plays, resulted in lickings (Louisiana State and B. C.).

"I learned something from Louisiana, too," he confessed with fascinating simplicity, "Not to over-use the forward pass." And he added sadly, that, with a nifty pass pitcher like Ronnie Cahill, who could fairly thread the eye of a needle with the ball, it had been too much of a temptation to keep slinging aerials. "I won't do that with Sullivan," he resolved, "I found that a pass attack is secondary to a good running attack. So Louisiana backs just dropped downfield and intercepted everything we threw. We should have run 'em blind."

So that's the way it is, these preliminary September afternoons on Mt. St. James, where that astute manipulator, Thos. J. McCabe, has drafted a workhorse schedule of 10 games. At this premature stage it looks as though the Crose will do well to win six of them, excluding Louisiana State (Oct. 5 at Baton Rouge), Carnegie Tech (Oct. 12), Colgate (Nov. 2) and Boston College (Nov. 30). I wouldn't bet any dollars on it!

games behind the pace-setting Tigers and our Sox six full games away.

Cleveland can regain its lead by beating the McCarthy-men if the Red Sox knock off Detroit. That would leave the Sox four and a half games from home and the Yankees a game and a half away.

The only other alternative, a Detroit win and a Cleveland loss, would drop the Indians into third place and leave the Yankees with only the Tigers to catch and but one game from the roof.

The western clubs have all the edge playing in their home ball parks, but the Sox were always a club that did it the hard way and when the Yankees are on high, as they are at present, they'll spot you both edges and the middle.

So don't sell the East short yet. Come on you Yanks and Red Sox, especially you Red Sox.

BEES PLAY REDS TWO AT HIVE

By BILL GRIMES

After a none too successful Eastern trip, the Bees will open a three game series against the Cincinnati Reds with a double header this afternoon at National League Field.

"Deacon" Bill McKechnie and his Reds arrived in town late yesterday afternoon. Although his charges are seven games out in front of Leo Durocher's Dodgers, the "Deacon" still refuses to make any predictions as to the winner of the 1940 National League pennant.

"Sure, we are seven games out in front of the Dodgers. But have you looked over the schedule, from here in?

"When we come off this Eastern trip, we'll wind up the season with Pittsburgh and St. Louis. Pirates and the Cards are battling for second place. Neither club can afford to ease up. The World Series cut for second place is approximately $1100 and each player on the third place club will receive about $750.

SCHEDULE FAVORS DODGERS

"Now, the present day ball player has the greatest respect for $350. So, the Pirates and Cards will be bearing down against us, during the final series of the season.

"The Dodgers have a much easier schedule from here to the wire than we have. Of course, they must play the four Western clubs, starting today with a double header with the Cubs. But, when we mid-Westerners start back home, the Brooks remain in Ebbets Field playing the Phillies and the Giants for three days and then they'll entertain your Bees for a couple of days, after which they'll step over to Philadelphia for the last two days of the season.

"Now, don't get me wrong. The Bees are capable of making trouble for any club in the National League. But, the Phillies and the Giants have been "cousins" to Durocher's hirelings all season, yesterday's upset notwithstanding."

Apparently, "Deacon" McKechnie rates the Bees as worthy of serious consideration. He announced that "Bucky" Walters and Johnny Van Der Meer would be on the points for the Reds this afternoon.

WALTERS AFTER 19TH WIN

Walters will be seeking his 19th victory of the season. "Bucky got off to a fine start but he hasn't been so effective of late and the fans are wondering if he is stale.

Van Der Meer spent the season in the American Association. He was recently recalled from Indianapolis and since his return he has chalked up a victory over the Pirates.

"We had a tough trip," admitted Manager Casey Stengel. "We ran into some good pitching and lost four out of six games. In my opinion, some of the boys are tired. They are only kids and the strain is getting them.

"However, now that they are back home, I believe that they'll start clicking and we'll make it very interesting for the Western clubs. We haven't been hitting, otherwise we'd have taken both the Giant and Phillies series.

"I'm going to send Manny Salvo and Nick Strincevich against the Reds this afternoon. And, if they are in form, we swing back into the games won column.

After tomorrow's single game with the Reds, the Bees will take on the Cardinals starting with a a double header on Thursday and on Sunday they'll play their fourth twin bill of the week against the Chicago Cubs.

Red Sox Deny Price Rise

In answer to a recent charge by City Councilor Joseph Gottlieb that Fenway Park seats selling for $1.10 week-days sold for $1.40 Sundays the Red Sox management informed the Council through Mayor Tobin yesterday that all seats were the same price week-days and Sundays. The management explained that holders of $1.10 tickets were permitted to take any unoccupied $1.40 seat during week days but added that the $1.40 seats usually sold out on Sundays.

Salem's Starting Lineup Remains Mystery---Even to Coach Broderick

By SAM BROGNA

Coach Bill Broderick of Salem High, not only is aging fast enough by time alone but is being helped along very rapidly by one worry after another. Of course, worrying is the one and only problem with any football coach but with Bill, it's something that seems to have come with a resounding thud within the past four years and has stuck—or so it seems.

If it isn't a football player leaving school to elope and shattering the hopes of a championship eleven or his having trouble with one of his assistant coaches who seem to be a little dissatisfied with the setting, it's rebuilding a new eleven which has been stripped clean by graduation—with the exception of the two co-captains.

Last year, it was Charlie Reed who threw a monkey wrench into the well laid championship plans of Coach Broderick by whipping off to New Hampshire with his best girl whom he made his bride; the year before as well as the preceding year, Salem experienced its worst two gridiron seasons since Bill Broderick took over the job back in 1923.

IRONS OUT ASSIST. PROBLEM

This year, after his team enjoyed a rather fair season last fall despite the absence of a player who would have probably played an important role in bringing the State title to Salem, Bill once again is harassed with practically the same problem.

He straightened out Marty Donovan's problem last week and the assistant coach who was a holdout for about two weeks, reported Friday for the first time and once again harmony rules the ranks. But, Bill doesn't know just where he stands in regards to this year's outlook since he has been forced to start from scratch.

After the June roll call, he had only Don Williams, a tackle and Dick Anderson, back, co-captains, as a nucleus. This is very odd out in Salem but there was nothing he could do about it.

He issued one of the first schoolboy calls a little past the midway mark of August, taking 30 hand picked boys to his camp in Boxford. He worked them for a little over a week and then returned to Salem where he is trying everything under the sun to uncover some talent to mould a team with that would withstand the gruelling grid schedule which is but four days away.

ANDERSON A FIXTURE

With Anderson a fixture in the backfield, at the quarterback post, Bill is working "Harpo" Monahan, Harry Frazier and Bill O'Brien in the other berths. With the exception of O'Brien who tips the scales at an even 200, the other boys are small, light and fast.

Anderson is being used as the blocking back as well as runningthe team on the field, O'Brien will use his excessive weight to good advantage it is hoped by adding that much needed yard or two for the first down with a line plunge, and Frazier and Monahan are expected to carry the mail.

Other prospects who are expected to be in there quite frequently if they don't get a regular job are Harry Jackson, a colored flash, and Sam Whitmore, a passer.

SAW LITTLE SERVICE

As linemen, Broderick has working together for the opening clash with Newburyport High this Saturday afternoon Walter Mroz and Adrian Oulette, guards, Harry Sultzbach and Don Williams, tackles and Sebastian Spinale and John Ingemi on the wings. All these fellows earned letters last year although they didn't see a great deal of service. At center, will be Walter Mielcarz, a junior who is out for the first time.

This lineup isn't definite and may have a few new faces when the Witches open the season this weekend.

Coach Bill Broderick's crew will also play the first night football game in the history of Salem sports this fall. The date is with Lynn English at Lynn Friday night, Sept. 27.

"This is more or less an experience," sang Joe Smith, faculty manager.

1000-Yard Rifle Title at Stake

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 10 (AP)—The long range .30 caliber rifle championship of America was up for decision today at the national matches.

A total of 1498 of the country's top-flight marksmen entered a 20-shot, 1000-yard event for the Wimbledon cup, placed in competition in 1875 by Princess Louise of England. The event, won a year ago by Pvt. Alfred L. Wolters of the Marines with a perfect score, is open to any rifle, but the majority of the field used the army Springfield.

Another test for the Army's new Garand (M-1) semi-automatic rifle was on today's program. A field of 1465 entered the Scott trophy event, 20 shots rapid fire prone, at 300 yards with the Springfield bolt action rifle, while 1012 competed in a 16-shot event over the same course with the new arm.

Yesterday 34 marksmen scored perfect 50's with the Springfield in a 10-shot rapid fire event at 200 yards, while only one had a perfect score over the same distance in a 16-shot Garand match.

The perfect score among the 1057 M-1 marksmen was turned in by C. L. Sweet of Spark, Nev., while the 34 leaders among the 1502 Springfield riflemen were to shoot off today to determine the winner.

Sox Buy Three More Players

Ed Doherty, publicity director of the Red Sox, announced last night that three players were purchased from the Louisville club, all to report for spring training next year.

The deal, which was for an unannounced sum of cash and players to be named later, will bring the following players to Boston: C. C. (Tex) Hughson, 24, pitcher who won 6 and lost 10 with Louisville this season; Norman Brown, 21, pitcher, who won 11, including a no-hit, no-run game, and lost 5 for Rocky Mount while out on option from Louisville; and Albert Flair, 23, first baseman, who batted .313 for Scranton while also out on option.

AMATEURS BATTLE IN RAIN

BULLETIN

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—It was damp again today as the National Amateur Golf Championship went into its second 18-hole qualifying round over the west course of the winged foot golf club.

The skies were grey and heavy, their farways thick with dew before more than nine threesomes had set off in pursuit of the first-round leaders it had started to rain in earnest.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10 A(P)—Maurice "Hay Fever" McCarthy, who has been giving a good account of himself in high caliber golf since 1927, did so again when he paced the first 18-hole qualifying round for the National Amateur Golf championship with a two-under-par 70.

This, over a Winged Foot G. C. West course which was playing long and proving difficult for some of this country's finest Simonpures, was a sterling performance. But even so it gave the Cincinnatian only a one-stroke margin over his closest pursuers.

MORE DARK HORST

Actually he was the pursuer, since he came in last of the pacesetters. Bracketed behind him at 71 when the day's work was done were Dick Chapman, who croons occasionally and hits good golf shots consistently; Jack Cree, a blond, husky 24-year-old from upstate New York, and Tom Whiteway of Cleveland.

That Chapman should be up and in the running was no surprise. Winged Foot virtually its Dick's backyard. But Cree and Whiteway were considerable surprises.

Cree, medalist in the sectional qualifying round, was playing in the tournament for the first time. Son of Birdie Cree, one-time Yankee outfielder, he clipped two strokes off the front nine's par with a 34, and then held on well enough for a 37 coming home. Chapman played it the same way, while Whiteway was out in 35 and came back in par 36.

LED BOBBY JONES IN 1927

McCarthy, who had Bobby Jones 1 down with 3 to go in the first round in 1927, didn't start out sensationally, but he staged a whirlwind finish.

Behind him and the three 71 shooters the brackets began getting crowded. Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, defending champion and favorite, found a lot of good company at par—72, including such contenders as trailer Bill Holt of Syracuse, Skip Alexander of Duke, Freddie Haas of New Orleans and the hard-hitting veteran Ellis Knowles, who was a semifinalist in this tournament in 1906 and won the intercollegiate title for Yale in 1907.

Riggs Loses; Alice Wins

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Blonde Don McNeil, who didn't know he was beaten, is the new nation singles tennis champion.

The Oklahoma City sensation, 22 years old, who already holds the National Clay Courts championship and the intercollegiate title, pounded his way to a popular victory over Defending Champion Bobby Riggs, before a gallery of 7500 at Forest Hills.

Down two sets and with his opponent's game apparently at its peak—as is customary when the chips are down—Don made as gallant a comeback as any sport could wish and the championship crown will fit snugly on his tough blond head.

He threw caution to the winds, made Bobby play as he wished him to and finally triumphed, 4—6, 6—8, 6—3, 6—3, 7—5, in a match that may not have contained great tennis, but packed more than its share of drama.

Marriage Proves Victory Inspiration For Slammin' Sam

That big boxing state to line up with the N. B. A. this week may be Pennsylvania, according to the Associated Press . . . Centenary has begun secret football practice, with gates barred and husky freshmen patroling all roads leading to the stadium . . . If Seattle's Bud Ward wins the amateur golf title, he'll be the seventh fellow to do it twice running . . . Add tops baseball jobs: Rogers Hornsby, who took the seemingly hopeless Oklahoma City Indians and lifted them from the cellar to fourth place and a chance in the play-offs.

Tufts Captain House-Hunts As Work Opens

Twenty-four candidates reported for the first practice at Tufts College, and Coach Lew Manly put them through a stiff scrimmage with the dummies when they were driven indoors by the steady drizzle.

Most of the standbys have reported, but Capt. Jack West was absent, apartment hunting for his bride. He was expected to show up today. Bob Bissette, a back, is the only other experienced player missing.

3 TACKLES INELIGIBLE

The tackle berths are giving Coach Manly some real headaches, for all three of his prospects are ineligible until late in the season. Meanwhile, Nick Bournazos, who played center last year, has been shifted to tackle, for Richardson of last year's freshmen is a find at center. George Mernick is being tried at the other tack'e berth, with Pitman and Beckvold as possible alternates.

In spite of the loss of Howard Redgate, outstanding freshman athlete last season, the end berths will be well taken care of by Humphrey Hosmer and Mark Hanabury, both veterans, with Walsh and Donovan for relief.

PLENTY OF BACKS

Burch Lorrette and Bill Fogarty will handle the guard berths, spelled by Paul Raulson, a sophomore.

Backs are plentiful, with six veterans, and several sophomores showing promise. Harrison, Kenny, Rptter, Manly, Patterson and Curtis are among the veterans, with Moschella and Watkins coming up. Capt. West will act as blocking back.

Diamond Gems

Manager Fred Haney of those pesky St. Louis Browns was born in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in 1899 and started his pro ball career in the Pacific Coast League at the tender age of 19 . . . played in the Detroit and Red Sox infields for six years but spent most of his 20 active seasons in the American Association and Pacific Coast Leagues . . . managed Toledo in '36, '37, '38, and the Browns the last two years . . . the Browns are going nowhere this season but they're having a great time annoying the pennant contenders.

wrestlers, is a prime scholar, debater and mingler in most of the college's extra-curricular affairs. "He'll team with Joe Zeno," added Joe, "An aggressive tackle made into a conservative guard." (An epic in understatement—for I've never seen a "conservative" Holy Cross guard.)

Toys With Laterals and Spinners

Like all graduates of the Rockne system Sheeketski has tinkered with and changed it until it is less like the original Notre Dame stuff than a smidgeon and a smatter of other men's methods, including some of his own innovations. Like Rockne, who in his day was quick to seize on other people's inventions and brighten them up with new flourishes, turning them ultimately out as his own weapons, Joe toys with the lateral pass and the varieties of spinners.

The first is a play which Andy Kerr of Colgate found, neglected and left mouldering in the football attic some years ago and modernized by having his lads slide the ball backwards like hot pie plates an instant before being tackled, thus keeping the action scooting off at new tangents. And the spinner is a little pirouette with the ball hugged in the hunched-over pit of a player's stomach and ending with a delayed dart through one spot or another.

"Tackles!" pondered Joe with his eyes roving over the rooftops below the hill where the Industrial city tumbled away in folds like wrinkles on a fat man's stomach. "Johnny Kellar, th' captain, 'n Leo Brennan, a last year's sub." And sometimes at night when all the rest of Worcester is buried in slumber, he has sudden bed sweats thinking what to do if one or t'ther comes down with a sprain, a pulled ligament, or a creaky knee. "There's no depth," he vouchsafed, referring to lack of suitable subs. "I have a likely lad named John Fitzgerald to spell Kellar, but nobody to understudy Brennan."

Sheeketski, affable and honest, admitted that last year—his first as head coach, taught him a lesson. For, where he had allowed his upper classmen to loll through the season and neglected the heavy duty contact work of tackling and blocking, this year he would put them through hard, body-bruising drills, and risk the danger of injuries. "Gil Dobie once said, 'You can't win this year's football games on last year's sweat,'" quoted Joe, "I learned that."

Offensively H. C. looks sound. Joe Osmanski (magic name) is at one halfback position, Tom Sullivan at the other, Joe Boratyn (had infected teeth and a pulled shoulder muscle last year) at fullback and Frank (the Brain) Saba at quarter. "We won't huddle this year," observed Joe, recollecting that the only two games last season in which he had used the conference system of picking plays, resulted in lickings (Louisiana State and B. C.).

"I learned something from Louisiana, too," he confessed with fascinating simplicity, "Not to over-use the forward pass." And he added sadly, that, with a nifty pass pitcher like Ronnie Cahill, who could fairly thread the eye of a needle with the ball, it had been too much of a temptation to keep slinging aerials. "I won't do that with Sullivan," he resolved, "I found that a pass attack is secondary to a good running attack. So Louisiana backs just dropped downfield and intercepted everything we threw. We should have run 'em blind."

So that's the way it is, these preliminary September afternoons on Mt. St. James, where that astute manipulator, Thos. J. McCabe, has drafted a workhorse schedule of 10 games. At this premature stage it looks as though the Cross will do well to win six of them, excluding Louisiana State (Oct. 5 at Baton Rouge), Carnegie Tech (Oct. 12), Colgate (Nov. 2) and Boston College (Nov. 30). I wouldn't bet any dollars on it!

games behind the pace-setting Tigers and our Sox six full games away.

Cleveland can regain its lead by beating the McCarthy-men if the Red Sox knock off Detroit. That would leave the Sox four and a half games from home and the Yankees a game and a half away.

The only other alternative, a Detroit win and a Cleveland loss, would drop the Indians into third place and leave the Yankees with only the Tigers to catch and but one game from the roof.

The western clubs have all the edge playing in their home ball parks, but the Sox were always a club that did it the hard way and when the Yankees are on high, as they are at present, they'll spot you both edges and the middle.

So don't sell the East short yet. Come on you Yanks and Red Sox, especially you Red Sox.
